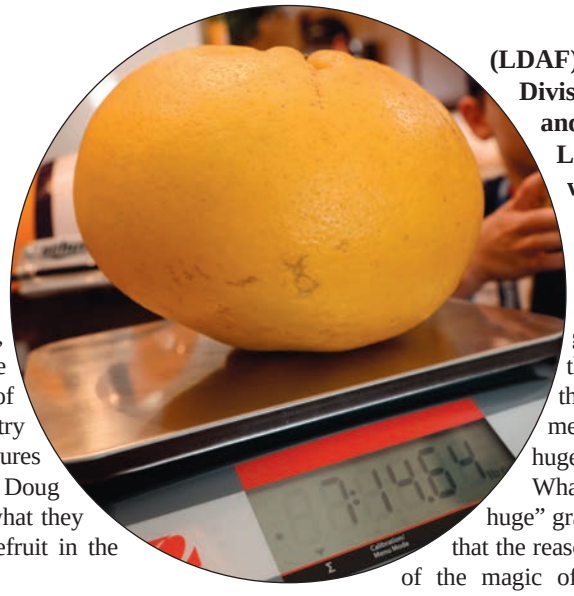
World-Record Grapefruit in Louisiana?

By Veronica Mosgrove



(LDAF) Weights and Measures Division assisted Mary Beth and Doug Meyer of Slidell, La. with measuring and weighing what they believe to be the largest grapefruit in the world. Photo by Jennifer Finley.

Before witnesses, including members of the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) Weights and Measures Division, Mary Beth and Doug Meyer of Slidell, La. cut what they believe is the largest grapefruit in the world.

Weighing in at seven pounds, 14.64 ounces, Meyer exclaimed, "That's a world record, guys!" The current grapefruit record is held by Cloy Dias Dutra (Brazil), who's monster citrus weighed in at seven pounds, one ounce and had a circumference of two feet, three inches on November 9, 2006.

Meyer is pursuing a Guinness World Record for the largest and heaviest grapefruit. "We got the world record, we believe, for the heaviest grapefruit. It's a Louisiana-grown grapefruit from a Louisiana-grown tree."

The grapefruit's circumference was also measured by LDAF employees who provided the official equipment to document the grapefruit. It measured 28.75 inches. This, too, was also a world record.

"I am in the process of putting all of the paperwork together. Guinness requires a number of documents that have to be submitted," said Meyer.

Licensed surveyors and horticulturists were also on hand to inspect the grapefruit. The horticulturists were there to ensure the skin of the fruit was intact and the grapefruit was from the family of Citrus X Paradis.

As for Meyer, he says the secret to growing a world-record grapefruit is having a fairy garden at the base of the tree.

"Our grapefruit tree is more than ten-years old. In the past, we have harvested some large grapefruit as one would expect from the white grapefruit variety. We have a very beautiful tree and our grandchildren decided to build a fairy garden at the base of the grapefruit tree," said Meyer.

He added, "As our visual focus around the tree was on the fairy garden, not much attention was paid to the fruit growing on the tree. Our grandson first noticed this large, green grapefruit growing on the tree as he was tending the fairy garden. He called me over and said, 'Look at that huge grapefruit, grandpa.'"

What Meyer saw was a "super huge" grapefruit. "I told my grandson that the reason it was so big was because of the magic of the fairy garden and the fairies that live there are taking care of that grapefruit. I then told him that the grapefruit might become the largest grapefruit in the whole wide world." From that day on, the grapefruit become part of the fairy garden and Meyer's grandchildrens' fairy garden adventures.

Meyer and his grandchildren would regularly measure the grapefruit while tending to the garden. At the point when the fruit measured 26.5 inches in circumference, they looked up the world record for the largest grapefruit. To their surprise, the world record was 27.5 inches. As the grapefruit continued to grow, they put in an application with Guinness for the largest grapefruit. After that, they applied for the heaviest grapefruit.

Meyer proudly said, "My grandson, Darrell, was with me on the ladder when we harvested the grapefruit and was by my side during the measurements. As we were all excited about the possibility of achieving the Guinness World Records, it was a very fun day that we were able to share with our family, friends and neighbors."

Once the excitement of measuring and harvesting the grapefruit was over, Meyer said the experience was bittersweet. "Our fairy-garden grapefruit was now missing from the garden, but sitting on our table in the house. It would no longer be a part of our future fairy garden story going forward, but will forever be a special and shared memory with our grandchildren," said Meyer.

Meyer and his wife have since frozen the harvested grapefruit and secured it in a clear, vacuum sealed plastic bag along with a copy of the LDAF official notice of inspection document.

It could take up to 12 weeks for Guinness to make the world record official.

East Baton Rouge Parish man arrested for theft of livestock

Baton Rouge, La. (February 8, 2019) – A Baker, La., man is accused of stealing two calves from a Central, La., resident.

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) Brand Commission arrested Travis Ledee, of 10338 Welcome Hites Drive, Baker, La., on February 07, 2019 on two counts of theft of livestock.

The Livestock Brand Commission received a complaint that the calves, valued at approximately $1,000, were stolen. Following an investigation, it was determined that Ledee removed the two steers and sold them at a local livestock market without the owner's knowledge and authorization.

"Owners of livestock are reminded to keep documented paperwork related to transactions involving their livestock. In this case, the animals were traced back to their purchase by the owner," said LDAF Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M.

Ledee was booked into the East Baton Rouge Parish Jail. If convicted, Ledee could face a fine and/or jail time.

The LDAF Brand Commission investigators were assisted in this investigation by the East Baton Rouge Parish Ward 3 District 1 Constable's Office and the United States Marshal's Office.

Strawberry season arrives with tasty fruit

By Johnny Morgan
LSU AgCenter

For those who wait patiently for those big, juicy Louisiana strawberries each year, the wait is over.

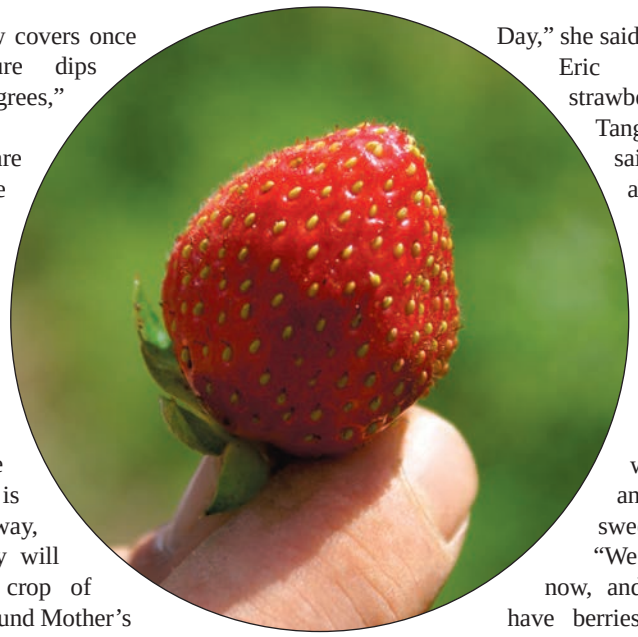
Growers in the Florida Parishes have begun picking, and the weather is working in their favor.

LSU AgCenter horticulture agent Mary Helen Ferguson said some growers in Tangipahoa Parish are starting to pick berries.

"Many of our growers put out their plants in October and hope to start picking in November and December," she said.

Recent cold snaps in south Louisiana forced the growers to protect their flowers and green fruit with row covers so they weren't damaged. But Ferguson said the temperature would have to go below 10 degrees Fahrenheit for plants to be killed.

"The plants are acclimated to our temperature, but the blossoms would be killed without the row covers once the temperature dips below 30 degrees," she said.



The growers are trying to make a profit on the early berries, with the crop really starting to come in around Valentine's Day.

"Once the cold weather is out of the way, growers usually will have a good crop of berries until around Mother's Day," she said.

Eric Morrow, a strawberry grower in Tangipahoa Parish, said he has about 100,000 plants in two varieties: Festival, which is the traditional smaller berry, and Fronteras, which is larger and a little bit sweeter.

"We're picking now, and we hope to have berries through the Memorial Day weekend. Then we'll go into blueberries and everything else," he said.

William Fletcher, also a Tangipahoa Parish grower, said he has about 94,000 berry plants, and he's expecting an earlier harvest this year due to mild temperatures.

"If the weather remains good, we hope to see the crop coming in about three weeks earlier than normal this year," he said.

In Louisiana, growers plant two types of plants: bare-root and plug plants.

Plug plants, or container plants, tend to produce earlier, while bare-root plants are cheaper to plant and tend to produce for a longer time, Ferguson said.

Fletcher and Morrow said they have berries available in Baton Rouge on Thursdays at LSU's Pennington Biomedical Medical Center and Saturdays at the Red Stick Farmers Market.
