Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M., and China's Minister of Agriculture Han Changfu met to discuss trade opportunities through Louisiana's ports.

Chinese Ag delegation visits La. to explore trade opportunities

By Veronica Mosgrove

As China and the United States work on an agreement to export rice to Asia, a delegation from China visited Louisiana in mid-September to learn more about exporting. The group, which included China's Minister of Agriculture Han Changfu, met with Louisiana Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M., to discuss trade opportunities through Louisiana's ports.

"Our job is to feed billions of people in this world. Trade, science, innovation and perseverance are huge when it comes to agriculture. Through our ports, we move more grain than any other state," said Strain. Strain has worked closely with Louisiana port officials on trade and other important issues such as dredging.

Strain told the visiting group that the economy depends on trade. One in three acres of produce in Louisiana is exported.

Changfu added through an interpreter, "Food is the first priority for anyone no matter where you are from." Then he acknowledged how much he enjoyed the gumbo he was served for lunch.

While visiting the Gravois farm in St. James Parish, China's Minister of Agriculture Han Changfu climbed aboard a combine.

Changfu noted that while the American farmer is "powerful", they are also "vulnerable" to such things as weather conditions. "Both governments – the United States and China—need to do more for our farmers," added Changfu. "China and the United States are worlds apart geographically, but we share the need for food security. I am here with huge interest to learn more about American farmers and see how your life is on the farm."

For sugarcane and soybean farmer in St. James Parish, Greg Gravois, the visit from the Chinese delegation was humbling. "I come from the small town of Vacherie and to have the ag minister visit my farm, I still can't believe it."

Gravois is a third generation sugarcane and soybean farmer. "I believe the magnitude of what we do over here is huge because their farms are one or two acres compared to my 3500 acre farm. I think it really opened their eyes to the type of farming operations some of us have with all of our machinery. They could see how much our combines could harvest in a short period of time. I'm not sure what they can and cannot adapt to with the climate they have and it's uncertain how quickly they will be able to mechanize."

Gravois says with the discretionary income the Chinese have, it will be a win-win for everyone as products from the United States become more available.

"As a sugarcane farmer, I respect all commodities. We are part of the global economy and we have an agriculture and forestry department and a commissioner who is very instrumental in trade deals. This is big for us here in Louisiana," said Gravois.

SU Ag Center holds graduation ceremony for Small Farmer Ag Leadership Institute

SU Ag Center Report

Baton Rouge, La. - Nineteen participants from Louisiana, Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Texas were honored during a graduation ceremony on Friday, Sept. 18 for completing their two-year course of study in the Southern University Ag Center's Small Farmer Agricultural Leadership Institute.

The graduation ceremony marked the completion of the institute's 10th class.

United States Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Assistant Secretary for Civil Rights Dr. Joe Leonard served as the keynote speaker for the ceremony.

Leonard praised the SU Ag Center's administrators and Dr. Dawn Mellion-Patin, director of the Institute, for sharing the program with not only the citizens of Louisiana; but the Southern region of the country.

"This is the best part of my job," said Leonard, "meeting you all."

Leonard went on to thank the participants for the time they invested and encouraged them to continue to learn.

"We see you and honor the accomplishments that you have made. We are looking forward to greater accomplishments," said Leonard.

He concluded his speech by sharing the final words spoken by Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. while standing on the balcony of the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, TN. After being told that one of the members of the "The Soul Stirrers" singing group was downstairs in the hotel. Dr. King said, "Tomorrow, at the next event, play (the song) 'Precious Lord, Take My Hand' and play it real pretty for me." King was shot and murdered in the next instance.

"I bring that up because his truth marches on in you all. Some 45 years later you have to feel and believe that truth marches on. And I could be wrong or I could be right, but whatever endeavor you do, you will have to take the Lord's hand."

Dr. L. Washington Lyons, Executive Administrator of the Association of Executive Administrators presided over the program. SU Ag Center interim Chancellor Dr. Adell Brown, Jr. provided a welcome and opening remarks and Vice Chancellor for Extension Dr. Gina E. Eubanks provided the program's closing remarks.

The ceremony was also attended by Kevin Norton, Director of Louisiana's USDA National Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) and Craig McCain, Director of Louisiana's USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA).

About the Small Farmer Agricultural Leadership Institute

The Small Farmer Agricultural Leadership Institute is a two-year course of study specifically designed to guide small, socially disadvantaged, limited resource and/or minority farmers through the transformative process of becoming successful agricultural entrepreneurs.

The goal of the Institute is to promote the sustainability of small family farms through enhanced business management skills and leadership development. The leadership institute has taken the majority of the participants from being just small producers through the mindset of being great producers with limited acreage, herds or holdings.

The SU Ag Center is collaborating with the Southern University Law Center, Alcorn State University - Small Farm Development Center, Prairie View A & M University - Cooperative Extension Program and North Carolina A & T State University - Cooperative Extension Program to bring the Institute to the farmers in various locations.

For more information about the SU Ag Center's Small Farmer Agricultural Leadership Training Institute contact Dawn Mellion-Patin, Ph.D., director, at 225-771-3532 or visit, <http://www.suagcenter.com/small-farmers>.
