Add some salt, a little seasoning and let the water come to a rolling boil. That's the beginning of a scrumptious seafood feast. Before crawfish season starts to wind down, you may want to throw in some delicious Louisiana sweet potatoes and you've added a new twist to the pot!

“One day I was boiling crawfish and I just threw them in. It was so good!” said Rene Simon, Director of the Louisiana Sweet Potato Commission.

The Louisiana Sweet Potato Commission is preparing a tutorial on how to add the sweetness of yams to any seafood boil whether it’s crawfish or shrimp. “There’s nothing better than Louisiana sweet potatoes added to crawfish or shrimp because it adds some sweetness to it. It’s a nice little balance with the spiciness,” added Simon.

The sweet potatoes used for boils are smaller than regular sweet potatoes.” A lot of times, the smaller ones are culled out, but smaller sweet potatoes can be used in boils. It’s another potential market for smaller potatoes that we can capture,” said Simon.

Simon says Louisiana has 10,000 acres of sweet potatoes which is an increase of about 3,000 acres since 2010.

Venoy Kinnaird, a sweet potato grower out of Morehouse Parish says the sweet potato was underrated for many years, but that is starting to change. “People are catching on to sweet potatoes. They’re eating the sweet potato fries now and casseroles. Also, people are doing a better job at cooking and preparing them. They need to be cooked right,” said Kinnaird.

Simon adds that regular white potato consumption is decreasing and sweet potato consumption is increasing because of the health benefits. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, a medium sized sweet potato is about 130 calories. Sweet potatoes are also a good source of fiber, potassium, calcium, vitamins A and C among other benefits.

Cooking the sweet potatoes with the crawfish is very similar to what you do with the white potatoes. “We just want people to be open to trying something new. This is truly Louisiana,” said Simon.

Emerald Ash Borer (EAB), a federally regulated insect pest of ash trees, has been confirmed in Union Parish making it the fourth parish in Louisiana to have EAB. EAB is a native insect of Asia. It was discovered in Michigan in 2002 and is now in 25 states, including Louisiana. EAB is a serious pest to all types of ash trees and the white fringetree, but does not attack other hardwoods or pine.

On April 28, 2016, the USDA notified the Louisiana Department of Agriculture & Forestry (LDAF) of the confirmation. The identified specimen was trapped by the United States Forestry Service (USFS) which along with Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), LDAF Forestry Division, and USDA Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service Plant Protection and Quarantine (APHIS PPQ) comprise the agencies that are trapping for EAB statewide. The four agencies have a total of more than 470 EAB traps deployed throughout the state.

In addition to the trapping and survey program, the LSU AgCenter and USFS began a biocontrol release program early last year to aid in the control of EAB. The USDA funds a program to rear tiny non-stinging wasps that, when released, aid in the control of EAB.

Dr. Rodrigo Diaz, LSU AgCenter entomologist and USFS employees made releases last year and will make additional releases this year. The releases will be made at two or three sites in northeastern Louisiana with more than 20,000 parasitoid wasps being released.

Currently, a quarantine is in place for EAB in Bossier, Claiborne, and Webster Parishes. Quarantine restrictions in Union Parish are pending at this time. The quarantine limits the movement of raw ash products to areas outside of the quarantine unless treated according to USDA requirements. Such treatments include but are not limited to fumigation, heat treatment, and chipping. Ash nursery stock is prohibited from being moved outside of EAB quarantine areas as there are no acceptable treatments for nursery stock.

Louisiana’s ash trees are primarily located along the Atchafalaya Basin and the Mississippi River Delta with many ash trees also planted in urban settings.

“Ash trees are commonly planted in urban areas because of their aesthetic appeal,” said LDAF Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M. “It can be a costly effort to remove these trees when the EAB beetle attacks them.”

LDAF continues its “Don’t Move Firewood” campaign which is geared toward educating people about the risks of transporting pests to other locations where some can do harm. It is best to purchase firewood not more than 10 miles from where it will be burned. When traveling, burn firewood where you purchased it and make sure to burn all of it.

In Vickie Mayeaux’s classroom, students are shown what they love to eat can develop a hunger to learn. Mayeaux fills minds and bellies in her pre-kindergarten class at Cottonport Elementary. The agriculture lessons she teaches develops a love of learning that has been brought to homes and the community all year long. For her efforts, Mayeaux has been named the 2016 Ag in the Classroom Teacher of the Year.

“We need to teach the masses that farmers want healthy food and safe food just as much as anybody else, but you also have to be realistic about how you go about this,” Mayeaux said. “What is possible, what is not possible.”

AITC helps Mayeaux fill her curriculum in the same way she fills minds. With a carrot garden and a crop of chicks that grew into hens, the students get lessons they can see, touch and taste. This pre-K class at may be the youngest at the school, but they are setting examples for other students. The projects have been such a success in Mayeaux’s classroom that its effects are reaching throughout the entire school. Older students and 4-H members often venture into her classroom to have a part in the project.

Vickie Mayeaux helps her pre-K class making the connection between full bellies and farming. Mayeaux’s class raised carrots and chickens through the school year not only to teach her class about agriculture, but using ag as a way of teaching math, science and reading. Mayeaux said making that connection is important for students of any age and many of the other classes at Cottonport Elementary used the Ag in the Classroom material to teach their students as well.

As 2016 State AITC Teacher of the Year, Mayeaux received an iPad, as well as an all expense paid trip to the National Ag in the Classroom Conference.

The Louisiana Farm Bureau’s Ag in the Classroom programs helps ensure a new generation of farmers and ranchers by giving teachers the necessary tools they need to effectively incorporate agriculture into every subject they teach. Each year the AITC committee selects a teacher who excels in incorporating agriculture into the classroom as the Ag in the Classroom Teacher of the Year.

Avoyelles Parish teacher named 2016 Ag In The Classroom TEACHER OF THE YEAR

By Allie Doise

Avoyelles Parish Ag in the Classroom Chair Charlotte Marks, said it was no surprise for her. She knew Vickie Mayeaux would be the State Ag in the Classroom Teacher of the Year the moment they met. Mayeaux worked on her own to provide the money to purchase child size gloves and gardening tools.

“I think it comes natural from her,” Marks said. “She has such enthusiasm for her students and for agriculture in general.”
