A Fresh Culinary Experience

By Veronica Mosgrove

For Phoenix-native chef Robert Vasquez, making Louisiana home meant embracing a culture like no other.

“In the beginning, I wasn’t fitting in. Over time the city of New Orleans was starting to open itself up to other cuisines,” said Vasquez.

Vasquez’s first job in New Orleans was as executive banquet chef at the Fairmont hotel down-

“It wasn’t until I started to live the culture that I understood the foundation of Louisiana cuisine.”

Vasquez added, “Just because you cooked gumbo one way at the hotel, did not mean that’s how gumbo was being cooked at home.”

While Vasquez is an expert in southwestern Tex-Mex cuisine, he worked with chefs from all over the world and knew how to adapt. He also learned very quickly. What he wasn’t afraid to do, however, was put his “spin” on traditional Creole and Cajun sauces, creams and local spices.

A temporary break from the hotel/restaurant business led Vasquez to Whole Foods where he was hired as a culinary specialist.

That entailed designing recipes to fit not only the culture and cuisine, but also the lifestyles of the New Orleans Whole Foods clientele. During his seven years with Whole Foods, Vasquez gained an invaluable education about the origins of ingredients.

This understanding was deepened when Vasquez began sourcing his ingredients directly from local farmers to create his dishes at a pop-up restaurant in 2013. Opal Basil at the Scotts’ was a successful little venture that he and his wife did with their friends at the Scotts’ Coffee Bar in Mandeville.

Fresh ingredients were also in demand and he embraced what the local farmer provided.

“I would do a different menu each weekend, whatever fresh and local produce were available to me, that is what I would use. The recipes and the menu were never the same.”

That idea developed into opening up his own restaurant with his business partner and wife, Lindsey Jo Vasquez. Opal Basil on the Trace opened in Mandeville in March 2014. The food is South- by- Southwest with Louisiana influences. Chef Vasquez requires the freshest, organically and naturally grown ingredients for his meals.

At Opal Basil on the Trace, Vasquez presents a Chef’s Tasting Menu each week. It is a “blind” tasting menu that lists only the main component of each of the four courses, nothing more.

What the Vasquezes also recognized was that their customers were requesting and following a Paleo diet which included grass-produced meat, fish and seafood, fruits, veggies, eggs, nuts and healthful oils.

Rural School Grant Opportunity: Grow Rural Education

I recently read an article published in the Southeast Farm Press and wanted to share the information with you.

According to the America's Farmers Grow Rural Education website, the organization is partnering with farmers to nominate local public school districts in rural communities to compete for grant money. It's all in an effort to enhance math and science education.

The grants are $10,000 and $25,000.

I urge you to consider nominating schools that are in these eligible parishes: Acadia, Avoyelles, Caddo, Catahoula, Concordia, East Carroll, Evangeline, Franklin, Jefferson Davis, Madison, Morehouse, Natchitoches, Ouachita, Pointe Coupee, Rapides, Richland, St. Landry, Tensas and West Carroll.

The grant money can be used toward science, technology, engineering and math education. The deadline to submit nominations is April 1, 2015. Nominated school districts can then submit grant applications, through April 15, 2015, to compete for the funds to enhance their math or science programs. This year, $2.3 million is committed to the project.

The Southeast Farm Press reports that school districts that apply for a $10,000 grant compete against other school districts in the same USDA-appointed Crop Reporting District (CRD).

School districts that apply for a $25,000 grant compete against schools that are located in the same state or designated region.

All applications will be evaluated based on merit, need and community support.

For more information about the America's Farmers Grow Rural Education program, go to www.GrowRuralEducation.com to fill out an application or call 1-877-267-3332 to nominate a school.

Crawfish recipes

Provided by

CRAWFISH CHEESE ENCHILADAS

20 oz. enchilada sauce	1/4 tsp. salt
12 oz. cottage cheese	8 (8-inch) flour tortillas
8 oz. sour cream	1 cup shredded Monterey Jack
4 oz. can chopped chiles, undrained	cheese
1 lb. Louisiana crawfish tailmeat	4 tbsps. sliced black olives
	1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Spread 3/4 cup enchilada sauce evenly in a lightly greased 13" x 9" baking dish. Combine cottage cheese and next 3 ingredients. Spoon about 1/3 cup mixture down center of each tortilla. Sprinkle evenly with Monterey Jack cheese. Roll up and place, seam side down in dish. Top evenly with remaining enchilada sauce. Sprinkle with olives. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Uncover and sprinkle with Cheddar cheese. Garnish if desired. For a lighter diet, substitute low-fat or non-fat dairy products. Serves 4.

CRAWFISH STEW OVER GRITS

2 (10 oz.) cans cream of celery soup	1 tbsp. hot pepper sauce
1 bell pepper, diced	1 bay leaf
1 onion, chopped	1/8 tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce	1 lb. Louisiana crawfish tailmeat
	Cooked, buttered grits.

Combine first 7 ingredients in a Dutch oven. Stir well. Bring to a boil over medium heat. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, for 20 minutes. Add crawfish and cook 5-7 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove bay leaf. Serve over hot buttered grits. Serves 8.

CRAWFISH DELIGHT SPREAD

1 lb. Louisiana crawfish tailmeat	1/4 tsp. lemon juice
8 oz. cream cheese, softened	1/8 tsp. hot pepper sauce
1/4 cup mayonnaise	Dash of paprika
2 tsp. finely chopped green onions	Dash of garlic powder
1/2 tsp. white Worcestershire sauce	Salt & pepper to taste

Remove crawfish tail meat from package and lightly pat dry with paper towels. Coarsely and grind crawfish and set aside. Put remaining ingredients in bowl of food processor and process until smooth. Add cream cheese mixture to crawfish and mix well. This may be used for sandwiches or spread on bread rounds or crackers. For an excellent salad, coarsely chop the crawfish and all other ingredients instead of processing until smooth. Serve over shredded greens. For hors d'oeuvres, spread on 1 1/2" bread round, top with a whole crawfish tail and a sprig of dill. Makes about 1 1/2 cups or 6 dozen hors d'oeuvres.

Craw-Bread

1 tsp. baking soda	1 1/3 cup Lou Ana oil
1 onion, chopped	8 oz. Cheddar cheese, grated
1 cup yellow cornmeal	1 large can cream-style corn
1/2 cup chopped jalapeno peppers	2 lbs. Louisiana crawfish tailmeat
1 tsp. salt

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Mix all ingredients except crawfish in blender. Puree until blended. Pour into greased oblong pan or 9" x 12" baking dish. Add crawfish to mixture in pan. Stir to distribute crawfish evenly. Bake 35-40 minutes. Serves 6-8.

LDAF employees, others recognized for excellence

Two Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) employees were awarded the Charles E. Dunbar, Jr., Career Service Award and five others received honorable mentions at the annual service awards luncheon Thursday, January 15, 2015 in New Orleans.

The Dunbar Award is the highest honor classified state employees can receive for their service to the citizens of Louisiana. The Louisiana Civil Service League presents the award to local, state and municipal civil service employees who demonstrate exemplary service to Louisiana citizens. Nominees are judged on commitment to classified service, contributions toward workplace improvement, personal initiative and volunteer community service. The award is named after the founder of the League, Charles E. Dunbar, Jr., who is responsible for spearheading the effort to establish a classified workforce that would be governed through merit system principles.

LDAF Dunbar Award recipients: Michael Barrington, D.V.M., is the LDAF Poultry Diagnostic Laboratory Director. The Homer native joined the LDAF as a veterinary medical officer in 1985 as a field veterinarian in charge of livestock and poultry programs in seven northwest Louisiana parishes. Barrington worked tirelessly testing cattle for the state's brucellosis and tuberculosis eradication programs, eventually achieving tuberculosis free status in 1994 and brucellosis free status in 2000. Barrington was also certified as a Foreign Animal Disease Diagnostician at the USDA Foreign Animal Disease Diagnostic Lab and volunteered on the federal task force that eradicated Exotic Newcastle disease from the U.S. in 2003. In 2007, he was appointed director of the LDAF's new Poultry Diagnostic Laboratory. Barrington is active in his church, the Farm Bureau, Cattlemen's Association and supports the Wounded Warrior Project and Paralyzed Veterans in honor of his son's military service.

Barbara Cronin, of Baton Rouge, is the LDAF seed germination supervisor. Cronin began her civil service career with the LDAF Seed Testing Laboratory Nov. 5, 1984 and was promoted to seed germination analyst supervisor in July of 1987. Cronin prides herself on the quality of sample analysis results delivered to many farmers and companies. She also supports the community with donations to veterans, food or school supply drives, toys for needy children and more.

LDAF honorable mentions include; Judy Fletcher, deputy undersecretary, John "Len" Sanders, agricultural specialist program manager, Sabrina Sentino, executive staff officer, Kyle Soileau, agricultural environmental specialist III and Brian Thacker, forest crew supervisor.

Education & Workshops

GAPs and GHPs Workshops offered February 2015 Fresh produce food safety has emerged as a critical agricultural issue and often presents a significant financial threat to specialty crop producers. The adoption of on-farm food safety practices will assist producers in managing risk and regulatory changes. The LSU AgCenter is hosting a series of FREE Good Agricultural Practices (GAPs) and Good Handling Practices (GHPs) workshops to assist growers with implementing and adopting GAPs.

Who should attend? Fresh produce growers, and processors and extension agents are encouraged attend these workshops. Financial assistance in the form of a cost reimbursement program will be established and will support 75 percent (up to $1000) of the auditing fees associated with GAPs certification for a minimum of 25 producers. Producers attending both workshops will be eligible for the cost reimbursement program on a first come first served basis.

Why attend? These workshops will help fresh produce growers understand food safety risks on the farm and to develop an on-farm food safety plan. Topics include water quality and management, manure management, harvesting and storage, worker health and hygiene and recordkeeping systems. Attendees will receive a certificate of attendance of GAPs/GHPs workshop.

When and Where are the Workshops? Series I: Increasing Your Knowledge of GAPs and GHPs (week of Feb. 9) Series II: Implementations of GAPs and GHPs (dates and locations will be announced at a later date). All workshops will be held from 8:45 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Prior to opening the restaurant, the Vasquezes had developed a food service, called Vive Foods, for people who requested special meals. It's described as a line of clean and healthy food options. People quickly learned about the pick-up/delivery food service. However, there was never a menu to choose from.

"Over time, the menu for each individual client evolves according to each client's personal tastes. As we've mentioned, it allows Robert to use the best ingredients that are available," said Lindsey Jo Vasquez.

"They see broccoli and they think you just steam it and put salt and pepper on it, but Robert takes it to another level," she added. "Vive Foods fits a multitude of lifestyles for people whether it's losing weight, eating clean, whether they have certain food allergies or whether they just want to support local farmers like our friends at Farmhouse Dairy, Grow Farm, Bartlet Farm, Jubilee Farms, etc."

Vive Foods currently provides 300 meals a week for clients. The meals, which are pre-ordered, are freshly made twice each week.

The Vasquezes also have a Paleo concession stand at LSU football games located near the Pete Maravich Assembly Center. The stand, Bravo for Vive, is a collaboration with local food blogger Monica Bravo [Bravo for Paleo].

La. leads nation in average soybean yield

OPELOUSAS, La. – Louisiana led the nation for the average soybean yield last year, according to the LSU AgCenter soybean specialist.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently released the average state yield of 57 bushels an acre, said Ron Levy, speaking at the St. Landry Parish wheat and feed grain production meeting on Jan. 22.

"Not many years ago, we were close to the bottom," Levy said.

Behind Louisiana were Illinois and Indiana, both with an average yield of 56 bushels an acre.

The national average was 47.8 bushels per acre, which is well above the average soybean yields of 44 bushels per acre in 2013.

One reason for Louisiana's top ranking could be attributed to bad planting conditions in southwest Louisiana last year that eliminated marginal land from growing a crop, Levy said. Louisiana farmers harvested 1.4 million acres of soybeans in 2014, and 83 million acres were harvested nationwide.

Levy said high-yielding soybeans crops were planted on sugarcane ground in Louisiana, with some resulting in yields of 100 bushels an acre.

Tests have shown that plants with medium heights yield best, he said. Planting time is critical, with groups III and IV beans planted April 15 producing the best yield, and group V fared better when planted earlier.

"Doing everything on time is the most important thing you can do with soybeans, starting with having fields ready to plant," Levy said.

The USDA also lists Louisiana's 2014 corn yield average as the state's best ever at 183 bushels an acre. LSU AgCenter corn specialist Dan Fromme said he thought the average would range from 165 to 172 bushels, down slightly from 2013.

AgCenter tests have shown that irrigated corn can yield 219 bushels, compared to dry-land corn at 184 bushels per acre, Fromme said. Planting in south Louisiana is best from Feb. 25 to March 20, and in north Louisiana the optimum time is March 10 through April 1.

Cooler-than-average temperatures last summer resulted in a good corn crop. "That was a blessing for late-planted corn," he said.

AgCenter entomologist Julien Beuzelin said grain sorghum farmers should be on alert for the sugarcane aphid. The pesticide Transform has a provisional permit in Louisiana against the pests that showed up in Louisiana in 2013.

Insecticide seed treatments for soybeans provide protection against a wide range of early season insects but may not be worth the expense every year for a crop planted within the recommended time frame, Beuzelin said. Soybeans planted earlier or later than the recommendations are more likely to benefit from insecticide seed treatments.

Red-banded stinkbugs were not as much of a problem last year, he said. Acephate insecticide remains the best option for the pest, he said, but resistance is becoming more of a problem.

AgCenter weed scientist Daniel Stephenson said a limited amount of Enlist soybeans, with resistance to the herbicide 2,4-D, will be released this year.

He also said a new grain sorghum variety, Inzen, tolerant to Zest herbicide, will be available from DuPont.

A soybean crop that can be kept weed-free for 5 weeks after planting can produce its maximum yield, Stephenson said. That means using a burndown herbicide before planting and a pre-emerge herbicide followed by a residual herbicide.

Corn needs protection from weed competition early, he said. "You've got to protect that corn early in the season. That means a burn-down 4-6 weeks before planting and a post-emerge application when corn is 8-12 inches. Atrazine is still the foundation of corn weed control."

The problem of herbicide-resistant weeds is becoming greater, he said, and Palmer amaranth, Italian ryegrass and barnyardgrass that have resistance have been confirmed in St. Landry Parish. Farm equipment can spread Palmer amaranth.

AgCenter plant pathologist Trey Price said research continues to find the cause of the disease called black root rot in soybeans. It caused significant damage in some fields last year as pods were starting to fill. The problem seems to be more prevalent in no-till fields, he said.

Cercospora leaf blight was not a big problem last year, but the disease in some St. Landry Parish fields has developed resistance to fungicides, he said. A case of sudden death syndrome was found in a soybean field in East Carroll Parish last year.

Price said the wheat disease known as bacteria streak was bad in Louisiana last year. Fungicides aren't effective against the disease, and variety tolerance is being developed.

AgCenter agronomist Josh Lofton said fertilizer should be applied to late-planted or slow-growing wheat, with half now and the remainder towards the end of the growing period. He said a crop with yellow leaves also should be fertilized.

Lofton said the secretions of sugarcane aphids on grain sorghum will interfere with the effectiveness of glyphosate as a ripener on the plants. Sodium chlorate is the better option for a ripener if aphids are present.

Lofton said he expects grain sorghum acres in Louisiana will decline this year "because people are having trouble with Johnsongrass and aphids."

AgCenter ag engineer Randy Price said spray nozzles should be tested regularly for uniform droplet size and flow rate, and replaced every three years because orifices enlarge over time.

AgCenter economist Kurt Guidry said corn prices should linger around $4 a bushel. "I don't think we're going to see $5-$6 corn without a major weather event."

The grain sorghum outlook is better because China has been buying more of that commodity, with prices expected in the $4-$5 range, Guidry said.

The strong U.S. dollar that makes American corn more expensive to foreign buyers is hurting corn exports, he said. But Argentina, Brazil and Ukraine are expected to have decreased corn production.

Soybeans are expected to remain in the $9-$10 price range, Guidry said. A good South American crop could bring beans down to $9 per bushel. "If we get to $10, you should seriously consider locking into that," he said.

China recently cancelled two soybean loads, but China resumed buying on Wednesday, he said.

Guidry said he expects wheat prices to reach $6 per bushel but not increase to $7-$8. Export demand for U.S. wheat is low because other countries have wheat to sell on the world market.

Fuel and fertilizer prices should hold steady, he said.
