New strawberry signage

pick louisiana strawberries™

By Veronica Mosgrove

It's that time of the year when ripe, delicious Louisiana strawberries are back in season! "Come March, we want everyone talking about Louisiana strawberries," said strawberry farmer Anthony Liuzza.

Liuzza's family started raising the berries in the early 1900s. "That's what they knew how to do when my family came from Sicily," said Liuzza. Now, the fourth generation strawberry farmer operates Liuzza Produce Farm in Independence, La. He's one of the largest strawberry producers in the state with 80 acres of strawberries. At one point, the Liuzza's had up to 120 acres. "When acreage shrinks, what does that tell you? It's because expenses are too great."

Liuzza says the industry is shrinking in Louisiana because it's getting increasingly difficult to compete with Florida. "Florida doesn't have as many frosts or freezes as we do. In fact, they haven't had any issues this year."

Liuzza says he never stops putting money back into the crop because he's always protecting it from the weather. "As a result, the consumer pays a little more for Louisiana berries."

This month, the Louisiana Strawberry Board is starting a campaign to promote the berry.

There will be signage in grocery stores across the state urging people to "Pick Louisiana Strawberries" as they do their grocery shopping.

The campaign will also include billboards, television and radio commercials. "I think the campaign is a good idea. If you want Louisiana farmers to stay in this industry, we need your support. We can't give away our strawberries."

Liuzza says he understands everyone wants the berries for a low price and the stores are competitive, but weather challenges have resulted in his family business expanding into other produce such as bell peppers, cucumbers, eggplant, squash and tomatoes. He says he can't raise one item anymore. He must expand his commodities to stay in business.

"We've had good and bad seasons. Right now, I'm just hoping we stop having freezing temperatures in March."

Liuzza said two hard freezes set back the industry for Valentine's Day but says he'll have plenty of strawberries for consumers in March.

"Buying local supports the local economy and farmers, the produce tastes better and is generally safer," said Strawberry Board Director Rebecca Riecke who is heading up the campaign.

Liuzza said while he's getting a break on fuel these days, everything else needed to plant produce is going up in price. "Food safety and staying in compliance is our number one priority. No one is more concerned about the quality of a product than a farmer because that farmer is eating what he grows and giving it to his family."

Liuzza adds, without the consumer's support, the Louisiana farmer won't stay in business.

Strawberry season is during the months of March, April and May.

Louisiana Agriculture & Forestry Today

Couple arrested on multiple forestry equipment theft charges

Baton Rouge, La. (February 20, 2015) – An Allen Parish couple is charged with six counts each of forestry equipment theft and one count each of simple criminal damage to property.

Investigators say Joey Ganson, 34, was already in jail on unrelated charges. He was booked January 15, 2015. Jamie Coker-Brown, 34, was arrested and booked on February 12, 2015. Last September, the Allen Parish Sheriff's Office (APSO) started receiving complaints that hundreds of gallons of diesel fuel, radios and other equipment were missing from a logging operation in the Westbay Wildlife Management area.

APSO detectives contacted investigators with the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) and a three month joint investigation began.

Investigators say Coker-Brown admitted that she and Ganson committed the thefts which occurred during the months of September and October.

LDAF Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M., said, "Our investigators and the APSO were able to locate and recover much of the stolen equipment. It is through these partnerships and the ability to work together that we are able to bring suspects to justice."

Ganson and Coker-Brown also face multiple charges from the APSO in connection to thefts from area businesses. Both have been placed on probation hold by the State Department of Corrections.

If convicted of theft of more than $25,000, the suspects face a minimum of five years hard labor and a fine not to exceed $50,000 or both. If convicted of criminal property damage, the suspects face imprisonment with or without hard labor for at least two years and a fine not to exceed $1,000 or both.

Quarterly Report of Forest Products

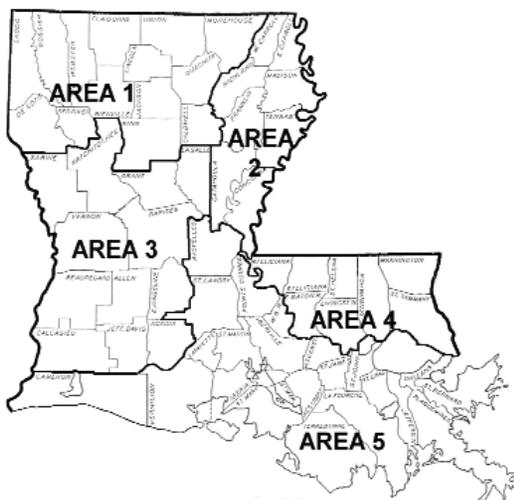

2014 Fourth Quarter Market Summary

Stumpage prices paid for pine sawtimber during the fourth quarter of 2014 averaged $262.72 per thousand board feet Doyle. This average represents a 11.4 percent increase from the previous quarter and 5.73 percent increase compared to a year ago. Prices paid for mixed hardwood sawtimber during the fourth quarter of 2014 averaged $444.31 per thousand board feet Doyle which is a 6.03 percent increase from the previous quarter and 9.61 percent lower than a year ago. Pulpwood stumpage prices averaged $24.79 per standard cord for pine and $37.68 per standard cord for hardwood.

This report is intended to serve only as a guide for timber stumpage prices and to monitor market trends. It should not be used to determine the fair market value of a specific timber sale. The prices paid for a specific stand of timber will vary considerable due to factors such as size, species, quality, quantity, logging conditions, distance to the mill, end product, demand and competition. Timber markets often change rapidly and therefore prices in this report are not necessarily a reflection of current market prices. It is strongly recommended to obtain assistance from professional foresters and use the competitive bidding process as the ultimate determinant of fair market value for any specific tract of timber.

Emerald ash borer detected in Louisiana

The emerald ash borer, a severe insect pest of ash trees, has been confirmed in Webster Parish making Louisiana the 25th state to confirm the presence of this beetle.

Emerald ash borer (EAB) is a federally-regulated plant pest that almost exclusively attacks ash trees. It was first reported in the U.S. in Michigan in 2002. The beetle, which is native to Asia, most likely entered the country in dunnage or wooden pallets. Since that time, it has spread down the East Coast as far south as North Carolina and Georgia, and west to Colorado. Most recently, it was found in southern Arkansas in July 2014.

A U.S. Forest Service and Forest Health Protection employee found evidence of EAB damage in ash trees during a visual survey. Further investigation revealed larvae (immature beetles) beneath the bark of multiple trees in approximately a two acre area. Feeding damage creates characteristic S-shaped tunnels, or galleries, in the sapwood causing initial branch dieback. After several years, the infested trees die. Larvae were collected and sent to the USDA Systematic Entomology Laboratory in Maryland where they were confirmed as EAB.

“Louisiana’s ash trees are primarily located along the Atchafalaya Basin and the Mississippi River Delta. However, ash trees are also planted in many urban areas for its aesthetic appeal,” said Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M. “As mentioned last year when EAB was discovered in our neighboring state of Arkansas, it could be costly for residents or city officials to have them removed once they start dying.”

The LDAF began drafting an EAB response plan in the fall of 2014 in preparation for the anticipated arrival of EAB in Louisiana. The plan included a survey, outreach and regulatory oversight components and involved multiple federal and state agencies including USDA U.S. Forest Service (USFS), USDA-APHIS Plant Protection and Quarantine (USDA-PPQ), and Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS). Industry associations with interests in forested lands and urban plantings of ash trees also participate as well as the LSU AgCenter. “The LSU AgCenter will continue to support these outreach education efforts to forest landowners and the general public on EAB issues through our regional foresters and parish agriculture and natural resource agents,” said LSU Vice President of Agriculture Bill Richardson.

The LDAF and USDA-PPQ have surveyed for EAB adult beetles annually for the past seven years using sticky traps baited with lure scents which are attractive to the beetles. A trap survey will resume again in the spring when adults become active. Survey results will help determine the extent of the beetle presence in the state and the potential regulatory actions necessary to reduce the spread of the pest. Regulated products would include ash nursery stock, ash logs, lumber and pallets and all hardwood firewood.

Last October, the LDAF started a “Don’t Move Firewood” campaign which is geared toward educating people about the risks of transporting pests to other locations where some can do harm. It is best to purchase firewood not more than 10 miles from where it will be burned. When traveling, burn firewood where you purchased it and make sure to burn all of it.
