32 family farms recognized by Louisiana Century Farm Program

“Over the years, we’ve evolved from timber to cotton, corn, dairy and now cattle,” said Walter W. Smith.

The Walter Smith Farm was established in 1876 in Mount Hermon in Washington Parish and under the current Walter Smith, it is still going strong.

The farm was one of 32 Louisiana family farms celebrated for contributing to the agricultural industry in the state of Louisiana for 100 years or more. Walter W. Smith, his wife, daughter and grandson were all on hand when the inaugural Louisiana Century Farm program was held at the 93rd annual Louisiana Farm Bureau Convention on June 27.

“Over the years, we’ve evolved from timber to cotton, corn, dairy and now cattle,” said Walter W. Smith. We have a lot of heritage.”

Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M., addressed the group during convention, and said farms like the Smith’s were a testament to the endurance of farmers as a whole.

“We honor you today,” Strain. “I know tomorrow will bring great challenges, we’ve faced them before, but we remain strong and resilient.”

Stephen Austin, president and CEO of Louisiana Land Bank, agreed. The bank was also a sponsor of the event.

“It’s been said that everyone is from somewhere and I’ve always been glad to be from the farm,” added Austin said. “We grow up fast on the farm. We value hard work, patience and persistence.”

The Smith farm has seen many changes over the years from manual to mechanized labor.

“You have to be dedicated even when times are bad,” Smith said. “You get to enjoy all of the elements of cold, rain and heat, but then you get to enjoy the beautiful sunrises, sunsets and even the animals.”

For Smith’s daughter, Ellen Smith Donaldson, she is excited her 12-year-old son, Henry, is getting to spend the summer on the farm with his grandfather.

“I live in the city now, but having this opportunity to expose Henry to the farm will open his eyes to something bigger than himself,” Donaldson said. “He’ll learn work ethic, commitment to his family and he will get to experience a permanent home base. No matter where we go, that farm will always be home.”

Meanwhile, Donaldson joked that her dad is also testing his own patience by teaching Henry how to drive a tractor.

As for Smith, he’s happy to say the family farm will remain in the family. His son, who is currently in the military, will take over the farm when he returns home.

To be eligible for the Century Farm program, the farm must be in the family continuously for at least 100 years, consist of at least 20 acres of the original founder’s land, must have at least one owner residing in Louisiana and must produce at least $1,000 in farming income annually. Tree farms are exceptions to the annual farm income requirement.

“Given the criteria, this is quite the accomplishment being in farming for the past 100 years,” said Dr. Bill Richardson with the LSU AgCenter.

“Never did I think we’d have so many farms and people here today,” said Farm Bureau President Ronnie Anderson before the packed room.

Lillie Adams Wiley with the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry said the inaugural farms in the program is a sign of future success.

“Our first year was an absolute success with 32 farms meeting the requirements set forth by the Louisiana Century Farm Committee,” Wiley said?

“I am proud to honor our family farms that have been in production for 100 years or more. Louisiana is recognized worldwide by our culture and heritage and the Louisiana Century Farm Award is a way that our farming community can show its deep roots in agriculture.”

Award recipients were presented a framed award certificate and a metal farm sign to place on their farm. The 2015 Louisiana Century Farm Award application will be accepted July 1, 2015 – December 31, 2015 and may be found at www.lsuagcenter.com/CenturyFarms or for more information, contact the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry’s Lillie Adams Wiley at 318-949-3225, ladams@ldaf.la.gov or 740 Covington Road, Haughton, La. 71037.

2016 Dairy Margin Protection Program enrollment now open

Agriculture Deputy Secretary Krysta Harden announced that dairy farmers can now enroll in the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Margin Protection Program for coverage in 2016. The voluntary program, established by the 2014 Farm Bill, provides financial assistance to participating dairy operations when the margin – the difference between the price of milk and feed costs – falls below the coverage level selected by the farmer. Harden made the announcement while visiting Wolfe's Neck Farm and dairy school in Freeport, Maine.

"More than half of our nation's dairy producers enrolled in the 2015 program, which exceeded our expectations for the first year of the program," said Harden. "We are confident that dairy farmers across the country will again take advantage of this safety net program for 2016. USDA will continue outreach efforts, including partnering with cooperative extension services, to ensure dairy producers are fully informed about the protections that this safety net program can provide during periods of market downturns."

The Margin Protection Program gives participating dairy producers the flexibility to select coverage levels best suited for their operation. Enrollment begins July 1 and ends on Sept. 30, 2015, for coverage in 2016. Participating farmers will remain in the program through 2018 and pay a $100 administrative fee each year. Producers also have the option of selecting a different coverage level during open enrollment each year. Margin Protection Program payments are based on an operation's historical production. An operation's historical production will increase by 2.61 percent in 2016 if the operation participated in 2015, providing a stronger safety net.

USDA also has an online resource available to help dairy producers decide which level of coverage will provide them with the strongest safety net under a variety of conditions. The enhanced Web tool, available at www.fsa.usda.gov/mpptool, allows dairy farmers to quickly and easily combine their unique operation data and other key variables to calculate their coverage needs based on price projections. Producers can also review historical data or estimate future coverage based on data projections. The secure site can be accessed via computer, mobile phone, or tablet, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Dairy operations enrolling in the program must meet conservation compliance provisions. Producers participating in the Livestock Gross Margin insurance program may register for the Margin Protection Program, but this new margin program will only begin once their Livestock dairy insurance coverage has ended. Producers must also submit form CCC-782 for 2016, confirming their Margin Protection Program coverage level selection, to the local Farm Service Agency (FSA) office. If electing higher coverage for 2016, dairy producers can either pay the premium in full at the time of enrollment or pay a minimum of 25 percent of the premium by Feb. 1, 2016.

The Margin Protection Program was established by the 2014 Farm Bill, which builds on historic economic gains in rural America over the past six years, while achieving meaningful reform and billions of dollars in savings for the taxpayer. For more information, visit www.usda.gov/farmbill.

For more information, visit FSA online at www.fsa.usda.gov/dairy for more information, or stop by a local FSA office to learn more about the Margin Protection Program. To find a local FSA office in your area, visit <http://offices.usda.gov>.

Fournier named 2015 Louisiana Farm Bureau Queen

NEW ORLEANS – In a sea of glitz and glamour, one diamond rose to the top and was crowned the 2015 Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation queen here Saturday night.

Following a tight contest between 28 beautiful women, Bailey Nicole Fournier, 18, of Washington Parish was named queen during the Louisiana Farm Bureau 93rd Annual Convention.

For Saturday night's contest, Fournier wore an ivory, chiffon gown with a flowing skirt and a beaded top. She is a daughter of Sheryl Sicard and Philip Fournier. Fournier is a graduate of Franklinton High School, where she was an All-District First Soccer Team selection and captain of the school's girls varsity soccer team. In addition, she was an Area IV officer for Louisiana FFA. Fournier recently returned from a mission trip to the Dominican Republic. She will attend Louisiana Tech University in Ruston to pursue a degree in agricultural business beginning this fall.

As queen, Fournier will represent the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation at major state festivals and other events. She also will participate in next year's convention activities, as well as other activities. Outgoing Queen Allie Nicole Doise said she learned a lot from her reign from 2014 to 2015.

"This was one of the best years of my life," Doise said in a tearful farewell address. "I learned a lot about Louisiana agriculture and I met a lot of amazing people."

First runner-up was Camila Carrera, 17, of Pointe Coupee Parish. Carrera wore a black, off-the-shoulder fitted gown with a peek-a-boo split, edged in crystals. Carrera is a junior at Livonia High School where she has maintained a 4.0 grade point average. She is an avid dancer who said she learned discipline, poise and grace, as well developed a sense of perseverance, persistence and determination from the art of dance. After graduating from high school, Carrera, a daughter of Jaime and Reina Carrera, plans to attend college and pursue a career in medicine.

Rebekah Leanne Aultman, 18, of Franklin Parish was second runner-up. Aultman, a daughter of Rick and Jean Aultman, is a 2015 high school graduate. She received an outstanding student scholarship to Northwestern State University where she will attend this fall and serve on the President's Leadership Team. Aultman is a two-time state champion volleyball player and a member of the All-State team. She has been a leader in her church youth group and participated in mission trips. Saturday night, Aultman wore a royal blue chiffon gown, accented with a splash of crystals across the bodice.

Kristen Ashford was named Miss Congeniality. A 19-year-old from West Baton Rouge Parish, Ashford is a daughter of Mike and Laynea Ashford. She is a graduate of Redemptorist High School and attends the University of Louisiana at Lafayette where she maintains a 3.8 grade point average as a student in the nursing program. Ashford was a member of the university's homecoming court and a Phi Mu sorority Butterfly. Her future plans are to become a pediatric nurse practitioner and join the Louisiana Farm Bureau Federation's Young Farmers and Ranchers program. For Saturday night's contest, Ashford wore a white chiffon gown with a pearl and crystal-encrusted bodice.

Kudzu bug continues its trek across the state

LSU AgCenter Report

BATON ROUGE, La. – The kudzu bug, an invasive pest from Asia, continues its trek into Louisiana.

LSU AgCenter scientists have been monitoring the movement of the insect since it was discovered in 2014 in Louisiana after moving in from Mississippi.

Pointe Coupee, Lafayette and Webster are the latest parishes to be added to the list, according to LSU AgCenter entomologist Jeff Davis.

"In 2014, the bug was first seen in the following parishes: Concordia, West Carroll, Tangipahoa, Washington, West Feliciana and East Baton Rouge," Davis said.

Before being found in East Baton Rouge Parish, the insect was not known to reproduce in soybeans, Davis said.

"We know that it overwinters as adults. Then they go on to kudzu because it's about the first thing to green up in the spring," Davis said. "It then moves on to soybeans in the warmer months and then back to kudzu in fall."

This pest has been on a westward course across the U.S. since it was first spotted in Georgia in 2009.

Davis said the first sighting of the pest was near Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport, which leads him to believe the pest entered this country on shipping containers or luggage.

It is believed that humans are the main transport vehicle for this invasive species, either on vehicles or on clothing.

"The pest is known for catching rides, even though it can fly," Davis said. "It is attracted to white objects, so white or other light-colored vehicles would probably be their selection for hitchhiking."

The name of the insect may be a bit deceiving because it is also known to feed on the stems of soybean plants and other legumes.

This is not a pest that farmers will want around their fields because it is capable of reducing yields by about 20 percent, he said. "That's compared to up to an 80 percent reduction in yields by stink bugs."

Kudzu bugs are not pod-feeders like a stink bug. Instead, they feed on the stem and leaves of plants.

On the positive side, the kudzu bug is not hard to control. The same chemicals used to control stink bugs will control the kudzu bug, Davis said.

A negative is kudzu bugs are about the same size as ladybugs and are known to overwinter in homes as well as in tree bark and under leaves.

Because using powerful insecticides in the home is not an option, Davis recommends using a shop vacuum to collect the insects, then place them in a plastic bag and put it in the freezer for a few weeks to kill them.

It's not known what the coldest temperatures are that this pest can survive in, but the kudzu plant is known to be in areas as far north as Ontario, Canada.

"In areas with really cold winters last year like Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina, they aren't having much of a problem with the pest," Davis said. "We, on the other hand, have had relatively mild winters since 2010."

The kudzu bug is now known to be in Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Florida, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Georgia.

For additional information about kudzu bugs, contact Davis at 225-578-5618, or your local parish LSU AgCenter office.
