the Hanley's “Dress it Better”

By Veronica Mosgrove

Any salad lover typically has a favorite salad dressing. In the Greater Baton Rouge area, it's hard to find someone who does not like a sensation salad. For Richard and Kate Hanley, they often wondered why no one ever bottled their favorite sensation dressing.

“There are recipes, but we could never buy a bottle of sensation. So we started talking about it and that's where it all began,” said Richard.

The Hanley's loved it so much they started experimenting with their own recipe and hosted salad parties at their home for friends to test their creations. “It's Louisiana. It's not hard to get people over for a party. Our friends were very willing to critique our version of the sensation salad dressing,” added Richard.

A trip to the Red Stick Farmers Market in Baton Rouge proved successful. They sold out of their dressing in two hours. “It was a hit. We looked at each other and said, ‘Let's do this. We are all in.’” said Richard. Richard and Kate started working out of a food incubator in Norco, La., but a push to put a food incubator on LSU's campus was key to moving their business forward in this leap of faith in which they were embarking.

The LSU AgCenter repurposed some equipment and the Poultry building and share the space with the Pilot Plant professors. “It's very expensive to build a commercial kitchen. I tell everyone just starting out in the food business to try the LSU AgCenter Food Incubator first,” said Sandoz. Sandoz primarily works with small business owners and helps them get their products in local grocery stores and farmers markets

Richard and Kate became permanent fixtures at the LSU AgCenter Food Incubator after quitting their day jobs- Richard was in advertising and Kate was a nurse. With the help of Sandoz, they moved their product from the Farmers Market to local grocery stores. “If it were not for the food incubator, we would not be here, right now. Plus, we have a unique situation in which our family owned grocery stores were willing to try new products,” added Richard.

The Hanley's would personally visit groceries and pitch their product. They even handed out samples to shoppers. In the meantime, they continued to work long hours to hone their craft. Kate says she knew those long hours would pay off one day. “I always say, ‘We're going to live like no one else, so we can live like no one else’,” added Kate.

As their sensation dressing grew in popularity, these two risk takers did not stop there. In five years, they're now making 150 gallons a week for each of their five different salad dressings: Sensation, Strawberry Vinaigrette, Avocado, Ranch and Creole Ranch. All dressings are made with natural and local ingredients. “From the farmer's market, we started going home with carts of strawberries. See Dressing, cont. on page 16

Utah man arrested in La. on timber theft-related charges

Baton Rouge, La. (March 22, 2017) – Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M., said LDAF enforcement agents arrested a Utah logger on charges of timber theft by fraud.

Julian Scott Smith, 44, of Heber City, Utah was arrest and booked into the Union Parish Detention Center on March 20.

Smith is charged with theft by fraud in the amount of $123,531.39. Bond was set at $25,000.

LDAF enforcement agents said while operating as Buckwater Timber Co.

in Monticello, Ark. Smith was hired to log a 400-acre tract of timber in Union Parish over a three-year period. During this time, Smith reportedly withheld payments for 67 loads of timber and altered total tonnage from tickets to reflect a lower weight on documents provided to landowners.

The investigation reportedly revealed that Smith used the illegally obtained timber proceeds for his own personal finances.

“Before contracting with someone to cut timber, do your homework,” Strain said. “Always get references, ask friends or neighbors and call our office to be sure you are dealing with a trustworthy individual or company.”

Strain advises anyone who suspects timber theft to contact the Office of Forestry at 225-925-4500.

That's when we branched out and started experimenting with our second salad dressing — the strawberry vinaigrette," said Richard. The dressings are gluten free and non-GMO. Richard handles all of the marketing and design work. He says he relies on Kate's taste palate and organizational skills.

As their inventory grows, so do the number of stores both locally and regionally that stock their shelves with the Hanley's creations. Hanley's dressings can be found in the Gulf South in approximately 800 retailers including AG Stores, Winn-Dixie, Whole Foods, and recently, Wal-Mart.

"I knew they would be successful," said Sandoz. "They are assertive and not afraid to reach out to their mentors. I knew they wanted to succeed."

Part of Sandoz's role at the LSU AgCenter Food Incubator is to assist entrepreneurs in getting their products on store shelves. The incubator has produced 125 tons of food products since opening its doors in 2013. Currently, there are 30 tenants who rent space in LSU's commercial kitchen. Their products are in approximately 90 stores regionally.

LSU AgCenter Vice-Chancellor John Russin

says the food incubator brings opportunities to people who would be not able to afford to own a commercial kitchen. "What it has done for us is beyond measure. It has allowed the AgCenter to support our citizens by directly interacting and helping start food companies from scratch," said LSU AgCenter Vice Chancellor John Russin.

For Kate and Richard, it has been a lot of long days and nights to get where they are today. They say they will not slow down until they achieve their goal of "living like no one else." The Hanley's offer this advice: "Do not give up. Even though we had successful careers and young children, we still did this. We started all of this with just three thousand dollars," said Kate. Richard added, "Every day is tough. You need to stay optimistic because you will get through each tough day. And if you have a food product, this (LSU AgCenter Food Incubator) is where you need to be."

The LSU AgCenter Food Incubator received $2.5 million through an Office of Community Development grant facilitated by the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry and Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M. Sandoz says they are currently seeking additional funding to expand the facility.

Census of Agriculture countdown begins

America's farmers and ranchers will soon have the opportunity to strongly represent agriculture in their communities and industry by taking part in the 2017 Census of Agriculture. Conducted every five years by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS), the census, to be mailed at the end of this year, is a complete count of all U.S. farms, ranches, and those who operate them.

"The Census of Agriculture remains the only source of uniform, comprehensive, and impartial agriculture data for every county in the nation," said NASS Administrator Hubert Hamer. "As such, census results are relied upon heavily by those who serve farmers and rural communities, including federal, state and local governments, agribusinesses, trade associations, extension educators, researchers, and farmers and ranchers themselves."

The Census of Agriculture highlights land use and ownership, operator characteristics, production practices, income and expenditures, and other topics. The 2012 Census of Agriculture revealed that over three million farmers operated more than two million farms, spanning over 914 million acres. This was a four percent decrease in the number of U.S. farms from the previous census in 2007. However, agriculture sales, income, and expenses increased between 2007 and 2012. This telling information and thousands of other agriculture statistics are a direct result of responses to the Census of Agriculture.

Producers who are new to farming or did not receive a Census of Agriculture in 2012 still have time to sign up to receive the 2017 Census of Agriculture report form by visiting www.agcensus.usda.gov and clicking on the 'Make Sure You Are Counted' button through June. NASS defines a farm as any place from which $1,000 or more of agricultural products were produced and sold, or normally would have been sold, during the census year (2017).

For more information about the 2017 Census of Agriculture and to see how census data are used, visit www.agcensus.usda.gov or call (800) 727-9540.

Fresh produce farmers, packers, distribution centers

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry is able to provide fresh produce farmers, packing facilities and distribution centers in Louisiana with basic Good Agriculture Practice/Good Handling Practices (GAP/GHP) audits, as well as, GAPs Harmonized audits (with or without the Global addendum).

GAP audits are a voluntary for hire service that 29certifies a producer's efforts to provide safe, quality product free from contamination to the consumer.

For more information or to schedule an audit, contact Audrey Carrier at our Hammond office at 985-543-4024 or email acarrier@ldaf.state.la.us.

Recently, I had the privilege of hearing an amazing speech which shines a spotlight on significant challenges facing the American agricultural industry. The speech was written and delivered by a very talented young lady, Kayleigh Reneau, a high school student and Louisiana Future Farmers of America (FFA) member. She won an award for her speech “A Voice for the Forgotten” that she researched, wrote and delivered for an FFA competitive speech program. I was so impressed, I wanted to share it with you...

A Voice for the Forgotten

By Kayleigh Reneau
Prepared Public Speaking
Pearl River FFA Chapter

In 1917 the United States consisted of 48 states, John Rockefeller became the first billionaire, the first female was elected to Congress, and 32 percent of the American population was engaged in farming. Two states and a century later, only 2 percent of Americans are farmers and ranchers, and that number is declining¹. Our country depends on agriculture to keep us financially stable and to feed not only Americans, but the world as well. Agriculture is the backbone of our nation; however, production agriculture is under attack by the anti-agriculturist groups. Agriculture also faces the obstacles of a declining farming community, an increase of global food demand, and a negative perception of modern agriculture. If we do not protect our farmers and ranchers, where will we be in the next 100 years?

“I believe in the future of agriculture.” The world’s largest agrarian exporter is our very own backyard. The American agriculture industry plays a huge role in our nation’s economy. Farmers, ranchers, and the agriculture industry are keys to keeping our country financially stable. 15% of the U.S. workforce plays an indispensable role in supplying citizens with an affordable and stable food and fiber supply. The average farmer produces enough food to supply 155 people, all while the percentage of the population that participates in farming and ranching is drastically declining².

“I believe that to live and work on a good farm, or to be engaged in other agricultural pursuits, is pleasant as well as challenging.” American agriculture and agricultural-related industries are under attack by the anti-agriculturists groups. These groups have a damaging impact on production agriculture through campaigns designed to discredit the American production agriculture community. Special interest groups appeal to the average US citizen using emotions, directed at disgust and outrage, rather than rational responses formed from facts or research. They also use an emotional response to help erode away rights of farmers and ranchers. While there are many anti-agriculturists groups that mislead the public about today’s agriculture, one of the most damaging is the People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals, or PETA.

This organization takes in millions of dollars from US citizens and in turn uses that money to try to destroy our farming rights and by extension our country. PETA has a $45 million annual budget³ to help save unwanted pets; however, the money funds campaigns that are used to abolish animal ownership of pets and livestock, to destroy personal property rights, and to promote vegan and vegetarian diets. These campaigns are waged all while PETA has killed tens of thousands of more animals than they have helped to place in homes.⁴ While they claim to be trying to help animals they are instead trying to take our farming rights away. Not only do farmers and ranchers have to face attacks on animal production agriculture, but the very basis of agriculture production is now coming under attack in the form of anti farm policy and crop insurance campaigns. Anti-agriculturist groups push misleading information onto the public that effects all farmers, ranchers, and agriculture businesses no matter the scale, crop, region, or business. Crop insurance is an indispensable tool to protect farmers and ranchers by securing their livelihoods from crucial natural disasters⁵. It is crucial that the farm policy is secured from these interest groups because the policy is vital to combat the unfair practices with foreign competitors because their policies are harmful to American agriculture trade. Without farm policies and crop insurance, farmers would not be able to operate and the population of famers and ranchers would drastically decline. The constant attack on production agriculture will ultimately lead to the reduction in the number of people who are willing not only to farm, but also to resist the constant negative pressures and publicity placed on them by these anti-agriculturists groups.

“I believe that American agriculture can and will hold true to the best traditions of our national life.” The United States and the world at large are dependent on the United States’ ability to create a dependable and affordable agriculture product. With the number of farmers and ranchers sharply declining there has been a reduction in their voice on legislative matters at both the state and national levels. With the growth of anti-agriculture organizations there has been an increase in the need for legal protection of farmers that are simply trying to perform their jobs. In seeking to protect their farmers, every state has created a right to farm law, with even a few states, such as Missouri and South Dakota, having even adopted a “Right-to-farm” amendment to their state constitutions. These amendments help to slow or stop the number of farmers and ranchers from decreasing due to attacks from well-funded outside groups that push misinformation on the public. False information given to the public can lead to the passing of burdensome and expensive regulations that endanger the food supply and increase food prices. We as agriculturalists need to make sure our farmers and ranchers are protected from anti-agriculturist groups so that jobs will be preserved, farms will be protected and an abundance of food will be supplied.

I believe in the future of Louisiana agriculture. Louisiana agriculture contributes approximately $13.8 billion annually to our economy⁶. With about one-third of our state dedicated to agrarian uses, Louisiana is a contributing factor to the U.S. economy. The importance of agriculture to Louisiana and the United States is best summed up in a comment by Dr. Mike Strain, the agriculture commissioner of Louisiana, “Before any country can be a great nation, it must first be a nation great in agriculture.” Our state and nation depend on our farmers and ranchers. So if we do not stand up for our farmers and ranchers, then who will be there to keep our state economically stable and feed the citizens of Louisiana?

American agriculture is under attack. Not from an invading army, or even an insect that is threatening to destroy crops all over the country, but from within, by citizens that have lost their connection to our agricultural roots. In order to clothe, feed, and provide jobs, it is vital that states take legal action in securing the livelihood of Americans. American agriculture needs to be protected and advocated for our future generations. It’s our job to stand up for agriculture in our communities, state and nation. Do you believe in the future of agriculture?
