Price verification inspections protect consumers

LDAF Weights and Measures Program Manager Milton Hunter verifying prices as part of a price verification inspection.

LDAF Weights and Measures Division agricultural inspector Fred LaRue works with the scanning manager to determine prices at a retail grocery store in New Orleans

By Bobby Fletcher, Ph.D.

Many Louisiana stores use electronic scanners to compute sales at the checkout counter, which is linked to a computer where product prices are stored. Scanners are either hand-held or on the counter and the clerk runs the scanner over the price tag. The scanner reads a code on the product and the computer displays the price.

Louisiana consumers are to be charged the price that is advertised, posted, or displayed for an item offered for sale. Weights and Measures employees inspect scanners annually to verify that prices charged for scanned items reflect the advertised, posted, or displayed price for those items. When a scanned item produces a price that is either over or under the advertised, posted, or displayed price, it is considered an error.

“The Weights and Measures Division of the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry is charged with the responsibility to verify the accuracy of scanners and electronic pricing systems in all retail stores. It is one more thing we do to protect the consumer,” said Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M. The goal of the program is to maintain customer confidence in retail pricing practices and technologies and provide economic benefits for both the consumer and businesses.

Louisiana Law (LRS 3:4607) requires Weights and Measures inspectors to inspect and test all electronic barcode scanning devices to ensure that prices are posted for items offered for sale and the prices are accurate.

Below are the subsections (A and B) of the Weights and Measures Division that relate to barcode scanners.

§117. Bar Code Scanning Devices and Labels

A. The price of a commodity or item offered for retail sale which is labeled with a computerized bar code label shall be plainly displayed, either by a price marked in English on the package containing the individual commodity or item, or by a placard or card placed on the shelf in front of the commodity or item which is clearly visible and legible.

B. The price displayed on the shelf, commodity or item required by Subsection A of this Section shall be precisely equal to the price actually charged by the seller.

To help defray the cost of these inspections, Louisiana law and regulations allow the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) to charge an annual fee for registering these devices. Effective July 1, 2017, the Weights and Measures Division of LDAF is fully self-funded through fees and fines using no state general funds to operate.

Each year a Weights and Measures Division inspector will conduct a price verification inspection (PVI) to determine that at least a 98% accuracy rate is met. If the PVI results in an accuracy rate below 98%, additional inspections will be conducted. After two failing inspections, a formal warning letter may be issued.

If the location remains out of compliance, the business may be brought before the Weights and Measures Commission and civil penalties may be imposed. We strive to protect all consumers to ensure that equitable transactions occur throughout Louisiana, our PVI process is critical in making sure that happens through our 42 inspectors statewide.

For more information, contact the Weights and Measures Division of the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry at 225-925-3780.

Smoked Corn Stuffed Pepper

8 large green peppers	1 cup walnuts, chopped
1 1/4 tsps. salt, divided	1 (4-oz.) can chopped green chilies
1 tsp. ground black pepper	1/2 tsp. liquid smoke
3 cups cooked rice	1/2 tsp. ground cumin
1 (15-oz.) can black beans, drained, rinsed	1/2 cup Monterey Jack cheese with jalapeno peppers, shredded (optional)
1 (11-oz.) can Mexican-style corn, drained	Jalapeno pepper slices, for garnish
1 medium onion, chopped

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees. Cut a thin slice from stem end of each pepper; remove seeds and membranes; rinse. Cook peppers 5 minutes in enough boiling water to cover; drain. Season inside of peppers with 1 teaspoon salt and black pepper; set aside. Combine rice, beans, corn, onion, walnuts, chilies, liquid smoke, cumin and remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt. Spoon 1 cup rice mixture into each pepper; stand upright in 13x9-inch baking pan. Cover pan with foil; bake for 20 minutes. Remove cover, sprinkle peppers with cheese. Cook an additional 5 minutes or until cheese is melted. Garnish with jalapeno pepper slices.

Maple-Glazed Chicken with Cranberry Arugula Rice

3 tbsps. butter	1/2 tsp. pepper
1/4 cup maple syrup	3 cups cooked brown rice
1/2 cup dried cranberries	1 (6-oz.) pkg. fresh baby arugula (about 5-6 cups)
2 cups grilled chicken breast, sliced	1/2 cup Gorgonzola cheese, crumbled
1/2 tsp. salt

Melt butter in large nonstick skillet over medium heat. Stir in maple syrup and cranberries; cook 1 minute. Add cooked chicken, salt and pepper. Cook 1 minute or until hot; remove chicken using slotted spoon. Add rice and toss to coat; remove from heat. Toss in arugula; spoon rice mixture onto platter. Top with chicken and cheese. Serve immediately.

Tutti Fruitti Rice Salad

1 (15-oz.) can light sliced peaches	3/4 tsp. ground black pepper
3 cups cooked brown rice, chilled	1/2 cup lite raspberry vinaigrette dressing
3/4 cup dried cranberries	1/3 cup fresh chopped parsley, divided
1/2 cup toasted pecans, chopped (2 ounces)

Drain and chop peaches, discarding liquid. In large bowl, combine rice, cranberries, peaches, pecans, pepper, vinaigrette and 1/4 cup parsley. Toss well. Garnish with remaining parsley.

Stuffed Chicken Breasts

4 skinless and boneless chicken breast halves (about 1 lb.), pounded to 1/4-inch thickness	1 cup cooked brown rice
1/2 tsp. ground black pepper, divided	1/4 cup fresh tomatoes, finely diced
1/4 tsp. salt	1/4 cup mozzarella cheese, finely shredded
	1 tbsp. fresh basil, chopped
	1 tbsp. olive oil

Season insides of pounded chicken breasts with salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Combine rice, tomatoes, cheese, basil and remaining 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Spoon rice mixture on top of pounded chicken breasts; fold over and secure sides with wooden picks. Wipe off outsides of chicken breasts with paper towel. Heat oil in large skillet over medium-high heat. Cook stuffed chicken breasts in hot oil 1 minute on each side or just until golden brown. Transfer chicken to shallow baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees 8 to 10 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before slicing.

Creamy Pancetta Rice

1/2 lb. trimmed pancetta, diced	1 1/2 cups sweetened, dried cranberries
1 large red onion, chopped	1 cup pistachios, chopped
1 3/4 cups half-and-half	1/2 tsp. salt
3 cups cooked rice	1/4 tsp. ground black pepper

Brown pancetta and onion in large skillet over medium heat, cook until onion begins to brown, about 8 minutes. Add half-and-half; bring to a boil. Remove from heat. Add rice, cranberries, pistachios, salt and pepper. Stir until well blended.

Herbicide task force stresses education for weed control, crop protection

By Randy LaBauve
LSU AgCenter

A Louisiana task force for new herbicide technology recently met to discuss upcoming weed control technologies for crops. The group consists primarily of weed scientists and crop specialists with the LSU AgCenter, pesticide specialists at the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry, crop consultants with the Louisiana Agricultural Consultants Association and commercial pesticide applicators.

Their collaborative efforts are designed to educate farmers and applicators with objective, up-to-date information about new herbicide technologies.

“This is important for creating awareness,” said Rogers Leonard, LSU AgCenter associate vice president and program leader for plants, soils and ag water resources. “We know there are issues with new herbicides, so we’re establishing communications at the highest levels, and then filtering it down to the applicators.”

For the past two years, concerns with off-target movement of auxin (2,4-D and dicamba) herbicides have gained national attention. The task force, created in response to the upcoming introduction of weed control technologies based on these herbicides, was started in 2015 to educate applicators about issues such as weed resistance and potential drift.

The new herbicide technologies allow 2,4-D or dicamba to be sprayed over the top of selected crops, such as cotton and soybeans for weed management, much like Roundup Ready systems. These are critically important for producers with weed resistance issues, said Leonard.

During the spring, the task force discussed ways to better educate farmers on use of these latest herbicide systems.

LSU AgCenter weed scientists, in agreement with LDAF, decided not to include the technologies in the AgCenter 2017 Weed Management Guide but supported planting the crops so farmers could gain experience and evaluate yield potential of new cultivars, Leonard said.

“They did not have sufficient information to show whether or not the technologies were effective and safe to non-target areas,” he said.

AgCenter research has shown soybeans, and other crops without dicamba resistance, are extremely sensitive to dicamba off-target movement. Glyphosate products can also pose a risk to non-target crops, according to AgCenter findings.

That’s why the task force committed itself to stepping up efforts to educate farmers and applicators to become more vigilant with stewardship. Some of the important points discussed at the meeting were:

—Thoroughly cleaning tanks according to specifications or using only dedicated tanks for specific pesticides to prevent contamination of non-target crops.

—Carefully following product label directions for pesticide applications.

—Recognizing the potential of high winds that may cause the product to drift.

—Being aware of temperature inversions which could facilitate off-target movement and not spraying at those times.

—Using only approved nozzles and proper application rates.

“Collaboration is the only way to make this work,” said Kim Pope Brown, LSU AgCenter pesticide safety education coordinator and co-chair of the task force. “We have to make sure agriculture is on target, protecting human health and the environment.”

Participants in the task force were able to hear updates from representatives of Dow, Monsanto and BASF about their latest herbicide control systems.

Dow’s newest technology is the Enlist One control system, using 2,4-D with choline, while Monsanto’s latest introduction is Xtendimax, a dicamba weed control system. BASF highlighted its’ dicamba-based herbicide called Engenia.

Even though Xtendimax and Engenia have been in use since 2017 and Enlist One is slated for potential introduction into the 2018 market, the AgCenter has not made any recommendations on these herbicide systems for the upcoming year, according to Leonard.

“We will continue to educate farmers on the best weed management systems for Louisiana, integrating new technologies, where needed, with older chemistry,” Leonard said.

“In 2017, the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry required companies producing these new herbicides to provide stewardship training, and we hope this will continue in 2018.”

LDAF commissioner, staff tour LSU AgCenter's Food Incubator

LSU AgCenter invited Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M. and staff to see what has been accomplished since the facility began. The LSU Food Incubator has produced nearly 32 million tons of product, so far, this year. The incubator began in 2014 with the help of a USDA grant that was facilitated by the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry. The Food Incubator helps food producers who need commercial kitchen space and business assistance to produce their products. Hanley’s Salad Dressing, currently sold in major grocery stores, is produced at the Ag incubator located in Baton Rouge, La.
