Welcome to CRAPE MYRTLE MARKET

By Veronica Mosgrove

Houma residents Cecil and Leah Breaux believe in living off the land. “Our main goal was to simply grow a garden for us, but then this opportunity came up,” said Cecil.

On July 1, the Breauxs will hold a grand opening for their new venture: Crape Myrtle Market. It’s a small store open seven days a week where local farmers and people who do crafts can sell their fruits, vegetables, canned goods, homemade soaps and other locally-produced items.

“We want to give people a place to sell their items seven days a week instead of just on the weekend at the regular farmers market. It’s so hard to sell your stuff one day a week,” added Cecil.

Ironically, neither Cecil nor Leah comes from a traditional farming background. Cecil is a mechanic by profession and Leah is a stay-at-home mom who home schools their six-year-old daughter, Aubree. Both are very resourceful.

“I was canning pickles one day and I said I can’t believe people don’t do this. We just want to be as self-sufficient as possible,” added Leah.

For the Breauxs, their passion grew out of wanting to be self-sufficient. In fact, they started a garden on just under an acre of land. They want people to realize you do not need a lot of land to be self-sufficient.

“We’ve learned a lot from YouTube. It’s amazing what you can learn off of the internet and Cecil can do anything. He’s a jack-of-all-trades,” said Leah. “We also like to grow exotic stuff – black cherry tomatoes, which are sweeter than regular cherry tomatoes, purple bell peppers and red okra to name a few,” said Leah.

While they’ve learned a lot from the internet, they realize they don’t know everything and they learn a lot through trial and error. “With gardening, you think you know it, but then you realize what you do not know,” said Cecil.

Their interest in gardening and their social media posts about it caught the attention of one of Cecil’s customers at the mechanic shop. “He said, ‘I have this small building that will soon be unoccupied. Why don’t you use it to open up a seven day a week farmers market?’ That’s how it happened!” said Cecil.

So after work at the mechanic shop, the Breauxs would go to the small building located at 104 Star Court in Houma and work until about 11 p.m. every night for a month until they had the small building renovated.

Currently, the Breauxs have five vendors contributing to their store.

Here’s how it works: The farmer is charged a very small percentage of what sells. There is no fee to have your products in the store.

“We don’t have much overhead so we want to make it easy on everyone. We don’t want the farmer or vendor to have to spend money if their produce does not sell,” said Cecil.

The Breauxs are also planning to sell meat chickens and turkeys, one day. They also plan to host a monthly craft fair.

“Right now, we’re getting the word out through social media and word of mouth. Our family is in shock by what we’re doing, but they’re also really happy for us,” said Leah.

In a world that depends so heavily on technology, the Breauxs believe homesteading is the way to go. “We hope to influence our daughter by teaching her how to respect the land and live off of it,” added Cecil.

The Crape Myrtle Market hours of operation are as follows:

Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Bienville Parish timber theft arrest

Baton Rouge, La. (May 31, 2018) – Investigators with the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) arrested a Bienville Parish man suspected of stealing timber.

Sixty-six year old Wayne Durbin of Saline, La., was arrested at the Bienville Parish Detention Center on two counts of theft.

In April of 2018, LDAF enforcement agents received two complaints of timber theft that occurred on two separate tracts of timber land. These thefts involved timber harvested from a total of 439 acres in Bienville Parish.

LDAF Commissioner Mike

Strain, D.V.M., said, “During a four month investigation, Durbin admitted cutting the timber and not paying the two landowners for the timber he harvested. The value of the timber harvested from the 439 acres is estimated at $64,273.47.”

Warrants for Durbin’s arrest were issued on May 24. He was arrested and booked into the Bienville Parish Detention Center on May 29 on two counts of theft. Bond was set at $100,000.

If convicted, Durbin faces up to 20 years in prison with hard labor or may be fined not more than $50,000, or both.

Download the new Horticulture app today

With our new mobile horticulture application, it's now simple to verify individuals claiming to be horticulture professionals. Did you know? Work such as plant bed preparation, bedding plant installation, landscape design, lawn irrigation system installation, tree trimming and fertilizer application all must be conducted by someone licensed through LDAF. Be sure an individual is licensed before you hire them.

The new mobile app is available for both Apple and Android users. You can verify a horticulture license, permit of a business or file a complaint. Download it at the iTunes and Google Play stores.

Fresh produce farmers, packers, distribution centers

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry is able to provide fresh produce farmers, packing facilities and distribution centers in Louisiana with basic Good Agriculture Practice/Good Handling Practices (GAP/GHP) audits, as well as, GAPs Harmonized audits (with or without the Global addendum). GAP audits are a voluntary for hire service that certifies a producer's efforts to provide safe, quality product free from contamination to the consumer. ## LDAF welcomes Liberian future farmer group

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) and Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M., recently welcomed Jacob B. Kolleh and William C. Todd, Jr. of Liberia, West Africa who work with several schools in Liberia to establish future farmer student leadership organizations.

Jacob B. Kolleh is a lecturer at the Cuttington University College of Agriculture and Sustainable Development in the city of Suacoco and William Todd is the head of the Agriculture Production Unit at Booker Washington Institute in the city of Kakata.

The visit stemmed from the recently completed the Food and Enterprise Development Program in Liberia of which the LSU AgCenter was a major partner. A component of the training program was agricultural student leadership which included organization of a future farmer student group.

In addition to meeting with officials and touring the LDAF, the group attended and participated in the Louisiana FFA State Convention in Alexandria, interacted with Louisiana Agricultural Education and FFA leaders, spent time with their Louisiana host schools, toured agricultural industry and exemplary local Agricultural Education and FFA programs and visited officials with the LSU AgCenter.

Limelight hydrangea makes the cut

White is the only color Limelight hydrangea blooms in, and the flowers stay attractive for months as they gradually age. Photo by Dan Gill/LSU AgCenter.

By Dan Gill
LSU AgCenter Horticulturist

An outstanding new hydrangea called Limelight (Hydrangea paniculata Limelight) has been named a Louisiana Super Plant selection by the LSU AgCenter. Limelight hydrangeas bring a whole new look and way to use hydrangeas in our landscapes. This is not your grandmother's garden hydrangea.

Garden hydrangeas (Hydrangea macrophylla) have a long tradition of use in shady Louisiana gardens. From late April through July, huge flower heads of light pink, pink, rosy red, lavender, light blue, bluish purple or white appear above the rich green leaves. Garden hydrangeas have been the most common type of hydrangeas grown in our landscapes for generations.

Limelight belongs to a different species of hydrangea altogether — Hydrangea paniculata. This species of hydrangea has long been used in the northern U.S. and is commonly called panicle hydrangeas or PeeGee hydrangeas. But seldom have these been planted in the Gulf Coastal South. There was a perception that the panicle hydrangea did not thrive down here. That, however, was wrong.

While I have been aware of a few paniculata hydrangeas growing successfully in Louisiana over the past 20 years, I was reluctant to recommend an unproven plant.

And they generally were not available at area nurseries. That all has changed with the introduction of the Limelight hydrangea.

Although the Limelight hydrangea is new to Louisiana gardeners, it has been around for a while. It was selected from a breeding program in Holland back in the 1980s. Its availability did not take off, however, until it was picked up and promoted by Proven Winners. Proven Winners did an outstanding job of promotion. Suddenly, Limelight hydrangeas began to show up in Louisiana retail nurseries.

Trials at the LSU AgCenter Hammond Research Station over the past few years have revealed the outstanding characteristics of this plant for Louisiana landscapes. As people purchased and planted Limelight hydrangeas in landscapes over the past years, we have also gotten to see how they performed in home landscapes. And they have been exceptional.

Growing Limelight hydrangeas

First, forget most of what you know about growing garden hydrangeas. Panicle hydrangeas are quite different. These are large, robust-growing shrubs or even small trees much larger than garden hydrangeas. The standard H. paniculata can reach 15 feet tall or more. Limelight is a more compact selection, but it still grows to be 6 to 8 feet tall and wide over time, although regular pruning can maintain it at a smaller size.

While garden hydrangeas need shade to do well in our climate, panicle hydrangeas like Limelight thrive in full sun to part shade (six to eight hours or more of direct sun). It seems odd to plant these hydrangeas in full sun, but they love it. Plants are not as stocky and full as garden hydrangeas and do not bloom as well if planted in too much shade.

Limelight hydrangeas may be planted into beds, as individual plants or even in containers. When planted into beds, make sure the soil is well-prepared and the bed drains well (raised beds work well). Incorporate 2 to 4 inches of compost into the upper 8 to 10 inches of soil before planting. Make sure the top of the root ball is level with or slightly above the top of the soil in the bed.

When planting individually, dig a hole as deep as the root ball and three times the diameter. Remove the plant from the container, and place it in the hole. Add a generous amount of compost to the soil removed from the hole and blend them together. Use this to fill around the Limelight hydrangea. Water it in thoroughly, and mulch the area.

When planting in a container, remember, these are large plants. Choose a large container of around 10 gallons and pot the plant using a good-quality potting mix.

Once they are established, Limelight hydrangeas are not as fussy as garden hydrangeas about watering. Water deeply once or twice a week during hot, dry summer weather or when you see the shrubs wilt slightly. Do not overwater. The only major problem observed is root rot caused by watering too frequently after planting. Allow the soil to dry somewhat between irrigations.

Limelight and other panicle hydrangeas bloom later than the garden hydrangeas, and the color selection is more limited. Limelight begins to bloom in late May or June. The cone-shaped flower heads are large and very showy. The color starts off a cool, celadon green, matures to creamy white and ages to old rose in late summer or fall. White is the only color this species blooms in, although the shades of pink to rosy red produced when the flowers age adds a whole new dimension. The flowers stay attractive for months as they gradually age.

Whether a single plant or a hedge planting, the incredible floral display these plants produce will stop people in their tracks. The flowers are outstanding when cut for indoor arrangements and may be hung and dried as you would garden hydrangeas.

Prune Limelight hydrangeas during late winter or early spring. This hydrangea blooms on new growth. Plants are shapelier and bloom better if pruned back by about one-third in February or March.
