Louisiana's ag community helps Nebraska farmers after flooding

As Nebraska recovers from record flooding, the Louisiana-agricultural community has once again stepped up to help.

“We started talking about how we can help and we put the word out on social media and on signs in the store asking for donations,” said Tri-Parish Co-op General Manager Donny Cupit.

Cupit said they immediately started getting calls from people who wanted to make donations. The employees from the Tri-Parish Co-op in Slaughter, La. also identified 18 wheeler and flatbed truck owners who would be willing to donate their vehicles and drive the 1,500 miles to deliver the donations. The final destination would be Fullerton, Nebraska.

“This is a huge impact on them and we understand it all too well. Nebraska is one of those states where their primary income is from farming. When you lose an entire bean crop or all of your cattle, that’s devastating,” added Cupit.

The Tri-Parish Co-op worked through Louisiana

Farm Bureau to find out what would best serve the needs of farmers in Nebraska. Louisiana sent one 18 wheeler and two 24 foot flatbed trucks loaded with tubs of feed and protein and barbed wire.

“We just hope they pull through this. Most of the corn for the country is grown there. It’s also where the majority of feed yards are located,” said Cupit.

Cupit added it is humbling to watch how quickly and generously the agricultural industry responds in times of need.

“They’re just a different breed of people. They love what they do and instinctively you want to help because you understand the hardships farmers face on any given day,” he added.

Nebraska has reportedly suffered approximately $440 million in crop losses and $400 million in cattle losses.

Tri-Parish Co-op primarily serves East Baton Rouge and East and West Feliciana parishes. Feliciana and Kentwood Co-ops also contributed donations toward this relief effort.

Louisiana Agriculture & Forestry Today

National Invasive Plant Pest and Disease Awareness Month

Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M., said U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue has declared April "Invasive Plant Pest and Disease Awareness Month."

"Invasive pests attack trees, plants and agriculture. The damage can be severe and eradication efforts are costly," said Strain.

Pests hide inside plants, fruits, vegetables and firewood. They can spread when household items are moved to different locations. They can also spread when people travel.

Tips to prevent the spread of pests: Remove egg masses and insects from patio furniture, grills, bikes and other outdoor items.

Before traveling out of state by vehicle, clean it first. Check the wheel wells, bumpers and other hard-to-see areas to ensure it is free of soil, egg masses and insects.

When purchasing plants, make sure you purchase from a retailer that complies with federal and state quarantine restrictions.

Do not take untreated firewood with you, for example, on a camping trip. Buy certified, heat-treated firewood at your destination.

When traveling internationally, do not bring home an unusual plant, a souvenir made from plants or wood, or even a piece of fruit as a snack for the plane trip home.

It is also recommended that you research beforehand to see what will be allowed to take back into the U.S.
