Gardening resolutions for the new year

By Heather Kirk-Ballard
LSU AgCenter Horticulturist

With the arrival of 2022, it's time to reflect on the past year and decide on goals for the new year. Research has shown that new beginnings and dates like New Year's, your birthday and even Mondays are motivational when trying to tackle new goals. Consider your gardening goals this year.

This is a great time to reset. When coming up with New Year's resolutions, many people focus on improving their overall health, eating healthier, traveling more, relaxing more or being more physically active. By increasing the amount of time you spend gardening this year, you can accomplish all of these goals.

To begin with, many of us think about losing weight, or at least eating healthier, this time of year. Most people tend to increase the

you can try your hand at a nut tree. Some great options for Louisiana can be found on the LSU AgCenter walnut and hickory trees, which are native to Louisiana.

Figs are another important fruit that has been very successful in Louisiana, with several varieties being developed by the LSU AgCenter, including Celeste, LSU Gold, LSU Purple, Champagne, Tiger and O'Rourke. Brown Turkey, Alma and Kadota also perform well in Louisiana. Loquats and pawpaws are two additional fruit trees easily grown in Louisiana.

When it comes to vegetables, the sky is the limit. We are very fortunate here in Louisiana to be able to grow vegetable crops year-round with a large assortment of both cool-season and warm-season varieties.

If engaging more in exercise and increasing your physical fitness is your goal, the garden is a great place to get in a good workout. Gardening activities are well suited to meet recommendations for daily exercise. See Resolutions, page 20

RED BEANS AND RICE

Submitted by SoLA

Ingredients:

- 1 pound dried red kidney beans
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 pound smoked turkey sausage cut into 1 inch pieces
- 1 large onion, finely chopped
- 1 cup bell pepper, finely chopped
- 1 cup celery, finely chopped

- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons SoLa Cajun Seasoning
- 1 bay leaf
- 6 cups water
- Salt to taste

Instructions:

Soak beans overnight. Drain. In a large Dutch oven or heavy pot, add sausage and cook until lightly browned. Add onion, bell pepper and celery, and cook until vegetables have softened. Add garlic, ham bone and remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat to medium-low and cook slowly for 2-3 hours, stirring occasionally. If necessary, add water if beans are not tender. During the last hour of cooking, mash some of the beans to make a thick gravy. Serve with rice.

GRILLED CHICKEN AND VEGGIE RICE BOWL

Submitted by Louisiana Rice Promotion Board

Ingredients:

- 8 ounces chicken breast tenders
- ¼ cup low-sodium teriyaki sauce
- 2 tablespoon sesame seeds
- 1 cup U.S. brown jasmine rice
- 3 cups Broccoli florets
- ¼ cup carrots, shredded

Instructions:

Spray a stovetop pan with non-stick cooking spray. Heat to medium-low heat. Line the pan with your chicken breast tenders, and once the chicken has begun to cook on one side, pour the teriyaki sauce and the sesame seeds over the chicken while it continues to cook. Fill a medium-sized pot with 2 cups of water and bring it to a boil. Once the water is boiled, pour the 1 cup Louisiana Brown Jasmine rice into the pot. Allow it to boil for one minute, and then cover the rice and turn the heat down to low while it continues to cook and soften. While the rice is cooking, rotate the chicken until it is grilled all of the way through and it has browned. Wash the broccoli with water, and then place the florets into a microwave-safe bowl with 2 tablespoons of water. Cover the bowl with a microwave-safe plate, and place the broccoli into the microwave. Heat on high for 2 minutes to allow the broccoli to steam. Carefully remove the hot bowl and plate from the microwave, and drain any excess water. Once the rice is cooked, fill a dinner bowl with the rice. Then, add the chicken, broccoli, and sprinkle with shredded carrots. Enjoy!

HONEY TERIYAKI BURGERS

Submitted by Kjun Bees

Ingredients:

- 1½ pounds lean ground meat
- ¼ cup liquid teriyaki sauce
- ¼ cup KJUN Honey
- 1 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon Cajun seasoning
- 1 egg
- ¼ cup seasoned bread crumbs

Instructions:

Add the ground beef, teriyaki, honey, pepper, Cajun seasonings, and egg into a large bowl. Thoroughly mix these ingredients together by hand. Slowly add the seasoned bread crumbs while mixing until the mixture holds together without having an overly wet texture. Form into six equally sized balls and loosely pat into hamburger patties. Make a simple dimple in the middle of each patty. Fry or grill over medium-high heat for about 8-12 minutes until the meat no longer has a pink center. Flip once during the cooking process. Dress burgers to your preference, but we recommend topping them with a mild cheese (like Provolone) and a fajita vegetable medley, grilled pineapples, or fried onion rings.

Notes: Use a stronger flavored honey for this recipe. A good choice would be our winter Northshore honey or our standard general purpose Acadiana honey. Use the Cajun seasoning of your choice, but our favorite for this recipe is Jeanpierre's Special Blend Season-All. We tend to use bread crumbs with Italian seasonings, but any seasoned bread crumbs will help to enhance the flavor of this patty. If grilling, cherry or apple woods best complement the flavor of these patties.

ly physical activity. Gardening tasks such as digging, fertilizing, weeding, raking and tying plants to stakes use both upper and lower body strength, offering moderate-intensity physical activity comparable to brisk walking, swimming, dancing and biking.

Many gardening tasks are done while standing or squatting, such as pruning, mixing soil, planting seedlings, sowing, watering and harvesting. These are low-intensity physical activities, as are filling containers with soil and washing harvested produce.

If you are looking to reduce stress or improve your mental wellbeing, the garden is the perfect place. Many gardeners report having less stress and other therapeutic benefits from tending plants. Gardening can allow time for reflection and emotional processing. Mental benefits include a sense of purpose, relaxation and forgetting worries as you garden, in addition to increasing your ability to respond and rebound after difficulties, such as stress or illness.

If you are looking to increase the amount of time spent traveling, why not plan some trips to arboretums, botanical and public gardens and national parks? There also are many great educational conferences open to the public. The Gulf State Horticulture Expo is held every year in Mobile, Alabama. Additionally, there are many field days and horticulture educational events offered by the LSU AgCenter. Check our website for the events calendar.

Lastly, there is no shortage of gardening books. There are many publications from the AgCenter for Louisiana-specific gardening information. Research has shown that reading books in general can help improve brain function by strengthening connections in your brain, reducing stress and age-related cognitive decline, and helping improve memory and focus.

Gardening can be your one-stop shop for meeting your New Year's resolutions this year. Get out there and get it growing!

Garden plant trials are held throughout the year at many universities such as the one here in Fort Collins, Colorado. Plan travel around trials. Photo by Heather Kirk-Ballard/LSU AgCenter

Louisiana FFA Foundation Hires Director of Development

BATON ROUGE, La. (Tuesday, January 4, 2022, Louisiana FFA Foundation) – The Louisiana FFA Foundation Board of Directors has selected Raquella LeBlanc Manuel as its new Development Director. With significant experience in entrepreneurship and agriculture, Manuel begins her role this January. The Foundation builds partnerships with industry, education, government, and individuals to develop resources that recognize FFA member achievements, develop student leaders, and support the future of agricultural education.

Raquella LeBlanc

“I am honored to be selected for the position and I am ready for the challenge,” said Manuel. “I look forward to utilizing my unique blend of personal and professional experiences to take the Foundation to the next level and to serve the over 10,000 members and advisors, as well as the countless businesses and organizations that benefit from the work that Agricultural Education does in our state.”

Manuel’s former position as President & CEO of the St. Landry Chamber of Commerce as well as her experience as an agriculturist in Evangeline Parish aligns with the Foundation’s mission and values facilitated across Louisiana. A native and daughter of Baton Rouge small business owners, Manuel has participated in the Louisiana FFA Association on the chapter and state level which catalyzed her interests in agriculture and leadership.

In 2015, Manuel received her bachelor’s degree in Public Relations and Business from the University of Louisiana at Lafayette. Upon graduation she married and moved to Evangeline Parish to begin planting roots in small business marketing and cattle farming. She began her work as Chamber CEO in St. Landry Parish in 2016, landing the organization the title of Chamber of the Year of the State of Louisiana in 2019, while significantly increasing the organization’s economic impact and programing.

“Raquella has displayed the remarkable ability to communicate with corporations and small businesses, metropolitan and rural, alike to effectively advocate the importance of agriculture in terms of economic development, education, and entrepreneurship,” said Jason Dedon, Foundation Board Chair. “We have no doubt that she will prove an essential asset to Agricultural Education across the State of Louisiana.”

Apart from her professional accomplishments, Raquel is the proud wife of Clint Manuel for 6 years and the mother of two Future Farmers. Along with raising her family, she is the Co-Owner of Manuel Farms Cattle Co. which specializes in farm to table beef. In her free time Raquel enjoys volunteering, cooking, and entertaining.

ferent types of agriculture to our youth helps to keep the future of Louisiana agriculture strong.”

Covington High School has a barn full of chickens and a few resident cows. It also has rows and rows of vegetables and plants meticulously tended to by CHS agriculture students. Laird said adding these new flow hives provided by the LDAF will be a fantastic addition to their already strong program.

“When Commissioner Strain called me, I just lit up like a tree,” said Laird. “Everything we do here at Covington High School is hands on because we are blessed with a really nice farm. But it is about taking ownership. And this allows me an opportunity with twenty-eight students to give them ownership within the beekeeping industry.”

The LDAF will continue to follow the CHS Flow Hives program. Bees to populate the Flow Hives are the next scheduled delivery. Stay tuned for more Market Bulletin stories as we continue to follow this adventure down the Honey Trail.

Designing and planting foundation beds

By Heather Kirk-Ballard
LSU AgCenter Horticulturist

(12/23/21) A foundation planting is the placement of plants in beds that frame the home — typically, along the front and back of the house and sometimes along each side. By creating beds along the walls or foundation of the house, you create a nice visual flow into the landscape to create curb appeal.

When designing the beds, be sure the highest point is closest to the house and slopes downward 6 inches for every 10 feet away from the house. That way, when it rains, water will drain into the lawn and toward street drains.

Landscape beds should be 6 to 9 feet wide from the home to the farthest edge of the bed to provide ample space for plants to grow without crowding the house. It is important to create beds large enough to leave some space next to the house so that roots from trees and larger shrubs will not interfere with any utilities, plumbing, air conditioning units, the foundation of the home or the roofline.

When planting, be sure to consider the mature size of the plants going in. Large shrubs should be planted 5 to 6 feet away from the jority of the foundation planting. Add a tree or two, and the remainder of the mix should be annual and perennial bedding plants. Create a good balance of deciduous and evergreen materials. Keep in mind that if you use all deciduous selections, your landscape will look bare in the wintertime.

If you love flowers, consider the bloom time of each

Gorgeous and compact, the Cinnamon Girl variety of dwarf distylium is a great shrub to consider adding to your landscape. Photos by Heather Kirk-Ballard/LSU AgCenter Japanese magnolias are excellent accent specimens or small trees for use as foundation plantings.

Evergreen drift roses are an excellent choice for dwarf evergreen blooming foundation plants.

house, while smaller ones should be planted at least 3 to 4 feet away. Another important tip is to keep mulch, especially wood mulches, 1 foot away from the foundation of the home to help prevent termite infestations. Fill that area with rock or crushed granite for a tidy look.

In general, shrubs make up the ma-plant so the landscape will have a focal interest each season. There are plenty of plants to choose from that bloom in each season. Improved cultivars of many plant species that only bloomed in spring now have more than one bloom time, such as Encore azaleas and repeat-blooming roses.

A good rule of thumb is to make half of your plant selections evergreen, with one fourth flowering shrubs and trees and the other one fourth annual and perennial bedding plants. Be sure to include spring, summer, fall and winter blooming selections.

Avoid choosing plants that will grow and block windows. Choose shrubs with a maximum height of 2 to 4 feet to help prevent blocking the view of the windows. For the front of the home, choose dwarf evergreen blooming selections such as ShiShi Gashira camellias, drift roses, Mrs. Schiller's delight viburnum, dwarf varieties of encore azaleas, dwarf gardenia, glossy abelia, dwarf bottlebrush and improved varieties of Indian hawthorns.

Some great dwarf evergreen shrubs that do not bloom are Little Giant dwarf arborvitae, little-leaf boxwood, dwarf yaupon, dwarf junipers and dwarf distylium varieties Vintage Jade and Cinnamon Girl.

Tall flowering shrubs such as Japanese magnolias and camellias can be excellent choices for beds on either side of the house at the corners of the beds.

If you want your landscape to have a formal look, create symmetry at the focal point of the home: the front door. Use potted plants of equal size to the left and right of the front door to draw attention to the entrance of the home. Try ferns or create topiaries from hollies or boxwoods.

Landscapes help make your house a home, create curb appeal and add value to your home. If you keep wildlife in mind, you can also make selections that attract more than one type of visitor to your home.
