Invention of Low Glycemic Rice:

New tool to curb obesity and diabetes

By Herry Utomo,
Ida Wenefrida
and Bob Butcher

Diabetes is a worldwide problem affecting more than 463 million people (9.3% of world population). In the United States alone, more than 34.2 million people have diabetes (10.5% of the U.S. population), and 88 million people aged 18 years or older have prediabetes (34.5% of the adult U.S. population). Worldwide, diabetes prevalence is estimated to rise to 10.2% (578 million) by 2030 and 10.9% (700 million) by 2045. Diabetes is among the top 10 causes of death in adults and has caused 4.2 million deaths globally. The key to curbing diabetes emphasizes prevention through dietary and nutrition management with the goal of maintaining stable and safe levels of postprandial blood glucose concentration. The availability of low glycemic rice can support this dietary management approach by minimizing spikes in blood sugar and insulin levels.

Low Glycemic Rice

Frontière is a low glycemic rice developed by LSU AgCenter scientists that will be available in the market later in 2021. This low glycemic rice is a non-GMO developed using conventional mutational breeding methodologies.

There are three groups of glycemic ratings for food — low with a glycemic index of 55 or less, medium with a glycemic index of 56-69, and high with a glycemic index of 70 or more. In general, high carbohydrate food, such as wheat, has an average glycemic index of 74; potato, 78; and corn, 55. Rice has an average glycemic index of 73 and, therefore, is categorized as a high glycemic food source. The newly invented low glycemic rice has an average rating of 41, which is 14 points lower than the upper margin to be classified in a low glycemic group. It has the lowest See RICE, page 23

CAJUN 180 TRINITY GRILLED SALMON STEAK

Submitted by 180° Cajun Blendz & Seasonings

Ingredients:

- 1 fresh slab of Alaskan Salmon Fish
- 3 tablespoons of Cajun 180 Trinity Compound Butter
- Cajun 180 Trinity Seasoning
- LA Cajun Gold All Purpose Seasoning
- 1 bell Pepper, chopped (just enough to top salmon)
- 1 onion, chopped (just enough to top salmon)
- 1 celery, chopped (just enough to top salmon)
- 1 lemon

Instructions:

Start with a fresh slab of Alaskan Salmon Fish. Coat an aluminum baking pan or foil with a light coat of Extra Virgin Olive Oil or Cooking spray. Use Cajun180° Trinity Compound Butter and spread on top side of the fish. Coat the top of the fish with Cajun180° Trinity Seasoning Blend and La Cajun Gold® All Purpose Seasoning to your liking. Sprinkle and layer the top of the slab with fresh chopped Bell Pepper, Onions and Celery. (Fresh cut can be substituted with frozen pre-packaged seasoning blend). Squeeze a half lemon on the top and place lemon wheel slices on top. (Squeeze 1 whole lemon for more citrus flavor.) Cut 1 medium sized onion in half, use 1 half and slice to add slices on top of fish. Keeping the other half intact, place 1 ½ tablespoons of Trinity Compound Butter on the onion half and sprinkle with Trinity and La Cajun Gold® Seasoning. Bake this half with your fish. Place on the grill or in the oven and bake at 350° for about 30 min or until internal temp of 145°.

Cajun Trinity Butter Recipe:

Ingredients:

- 2 sticks of butter (softened)
- 2 tablespoons of Cajun Trinity Seasoning

Instructions:

Start with the 2 sticks of softened butter. Do NOT Melt or use the microwave! The butter will separate. Add the seasoning to the softened butter. Mix thoroughly, blending all the seasoning into the butter. Once mixed, there are a number of ways to store it. 4 ounce soufflé cups work well. I have used large ice trays to make block, or you can roll it in plastic wrap and make a cylinder out of it so you can slice off what you need as you need it. Once in a sealed container, keep refrigerated.

glycemic index ever reported in commercially viable rice.

Low Glycemic Index and Gluten-free

A low glycemic rice will transform rice from a natural source of “bad” carbohydrates to “good” carbohydrates. Consumption of lower glycemic foods can help prevent unnecessary snacking and excessive calorie consumption, thereby making this low glycemic rice an important factor in obesity prevention. Because rice is a gluten-free food, low glycemic rice will provide additional health benefits for consumers of gluten-free products, including those traditional nonrice-eating communities. The gluten-sensitive people who suffer from coeliac disease, noncoeliac gluten sensitivity, gluten ataxia and dermatitis herpetiformis now have an opportunity to include a low glycemic rice into their diet. Low-glycemic diets have been known to reduce risks of cancer, heart disease and other medical conditions.

Taste, Grain Appearance, and Cooking Quality of Low Glycemic Rice

The AgCenter-invented low glycemic rice tastes similarly to regular Southern rice varieties, such as Cypress, Cocodrie and

CL 151. Low glycemic rice is slightly softer when cooked, but there are no conspicuous color differences in either the cooked or uncooked white and brown rice when compared to the three regular Southern rice varieties. The low glycemic rice will be marketed as Cahokia in the northern parts of the U.S. and Acadian Prairie Rice in the southern part of the U.S.

Currently, the LSU AgCenter H. Rouse Caffey Rice Research Station scientists are working on developing a newer version of a lower glycemic rice to improve yields. Promising lines developed from different genetic backgrounds are in the pipeline utilizing the same technology previously used in developing the first low glycemic rice. Preliminary yield data collected in 2018 and 2019 identified yield potential improvement of 11%-17% compared to current low glycemic rice.

SU Ag Center and College of Ag receive $50,000 from McBride Sisters Collection Wines

Baton Rouge, La. – Recently, the Southern University Agricultural Research and Extension Center and the College of Agricultural, Family and Consumer Sciences were afforded the opportunity to be a recipient of the McBride Sisters Collection YES SHE CAN fund in the amount of $50,000.

The fund invests in the professional advancement and career growth of high-potential, professional women, with a particular focus on women of color. Its mission is to close the gender and race gap in leadership positions in wine & spirits, hospitality, and finance industries by providing professional development scholarships to emerging women leaders.

“This is the first partnership between the McBride Sisters Collection Wines and an HBCU,” said Agnes Uboma, Chief Impact Officer for the McBride Sisters Collection Wines.

The funds provided by the SHE CAN fund will be utilized for students and faculty within the SU Ag Center and College of Ag to gain invaluable experiential learning experiences and professional development in the fields of viticulture, (which is the cultivation of grapevines grown for producing wine) and enology (which is the study of wine and wine-making). All of this is in support of increasing the workforce pipeline of minority professionals entering the wine-producing industry.

“The Plant and Soil Sciences team inclusive of Drs. LaShunda Hodges, Jacqueline McComb, Crystal Vance, and Devaiah Kambiranda along with some of our student research assistants came together and made this possible,” said Dr. Renita Marshall, SU Ag Center Vice Chancellor for Academic and Student Services/Associate Dean of the SU College of Ag.

The fun, fab and eco-friendly SHE CAN canned wine collection and its related SHE CAN Professional Development Fund, are inspired by the endless pursuit of all women who are making their dreams a reality and breaking barriers daily.

Robin and Andréa, sisters who had been raised across the world from one another, both had a love affair with wine that was planted within them from an early age while growing up in two of the world’s most iconic wine-growing regions.

In 2005, the sisters found themselves together in California, fueled by a shared passion for all things wine, wine-making, and a desire to shake up the industry with a blend of old-world elegance and new-world finesse. It was then that the McBride Sisters Collection was born.

The brand has grown into what is not only the largest Black-owned wine company in the United States but one of the most inclusive, accessible, socially aware, and sustainable brands on the market.

USDA to Conduct 2021 Commercial Floriculture Survey

Baton Rouge, LA – The U.S. Department of Agriculture’s National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) will conduct the 2021 Commercial Floriculture Survey with approximately 70 producers in Louisiana. Growers will be asked to provide information on production area, sales of floriculture commodities and the number of agricultural workers on their operation.

“The information obtained through this survey will help identify state and national trends in areas such as new product development and changing production practices so that growers can make vital business decisions and evaluate the results of the growing season,” said Kathy Broussard, Louisiana State Statistician.

“By participating in the survey, floriculture growers ensure that NASS can provide accurate data on floriculture production, thereby enabling USDA and the industry to be more responsive to domestic and international markets and consumer needs,” Broussard explained.

As with all NASS surveys, the information respondents provide is confidential by law. “NASS safeguards the privacy of all responses and publishes only state- and national-level data, ensuring that no individual operation or producer can be identified,” stated Broussard.

NASS will compile and analyze the survey information and publish the results on May 25, 2022 in the Floriculture Crops report. Survey results and all NASS reports are available online at www.nass.usda.gov/Publications. For more information, call the NASS Delta Regional Field Office at (800) 327-2970.

Desk, continued from page 2

Barry and I discussed the upcoming season, and he even shared his secrets to the perfect crawfish boil every time. This visit was part of a new LDAF podcast series, Crawfish Tales with Commissioner Mike Strain. This podcast will bring you stories from the field as we visit farmers and ranchers across the great state of Louisiana.

It is important to meet your local farmers and ranchers and know that when you buy crawfish and other certified Louisiana products from our local farmers, you are getting the finest ingredients in the entire world. You are also supporting your local economy. Every dollar spent on certified Louisiana products circulates more than five times in your local economy. That is what makes Louisiana work. As we like to say, we are growing our economy one bite and one sip at a time.
