Senator Cassidy hosts Forest Hill Nursery Roundtable

By Veronica Mosgrove

As the nursery corridor in Louisiana works swiftly to recover from a devastating year stemming from the pandemic, hurricanes, excessive rain and an ice storm, the area received a visit from U.S. Senator Bill Cassidy (R-La.) at the end of March.

"I'm here to listen," said Cassidy.

Approximately 25 people representing the nursery industry and economic development in the Central Louisiana area attended the meeting.

"I think in the last year, we have had the single worst year ever," said Doug Young nursery owner Marcia Young.

The heart of the state's nursery industry is in Forest Hill, La. but extends to Glenmora and LeCompte. There are approximately 200 plant nurseries in the area.

After hearing concerns ranging from rebuilding to lack of assistance and guidance from the federal government, Cassidy left with a promise to help.

"The year 2020 was tough for many people and it was especially tough for those in Central Louisiana," said Cassidy.

"I know they need some relief and we will be looking into that."

One concern is the lack of H2A workers, documented foreign workers who work on a temporary basis, that so many of these agricultural businesses rely on.

"We are working on the Relief Bill including things impacting ag. We do think there will be a disaster supplement," he added.

Juan Garcia, co-owner of Faith Nursery, thought the meeting was productive. "He wanted to hear our problems. I hope he can bring that information back to Washington D.C."

Garcia, who has worked in the nursery industry for 22 years, said the loss of crops and structures was overwhelming but they will rebuild. "Everyone is in the same situation," added Garcia.

Sam Young, also of Doug Young Nursery, said a major challenge has been the lack of H2A workers available to help work the 300 acres of land that needs cleaning, clearing and replanting.

"It's hard for us to even get supplies. As for assistance, we are required to count every plant that was lost. How do you count dead plants on 300 acres?" said Sam Young.

Additional coronavirus assistance for ag producers announced

Louisiana Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Mike Strain, D.V.M., said the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is offering more assistance to ag producers and organizations recovering from financial impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic.

More than $330 million in funding was announced as part of USDA's Pandemic Assistance for Producers initiative launched in March, and includes $169.9 million for the Specialty Crop Block Grant Program (SCBGP) in which Louisiana participates. This funding will aid in developing new markets for U.S. agricultural products, expand the specialty crop food sector, and promote the purchase of fruits and vegetables by low-income consumers.

Grant project funding awarded as part of pandemic assistance can also go to organizations to assist farmworkers (e.g., for PPE and vaccination costs), projects to fund farmers, food businesses, and other relevant entities to respond to risks and supply chain disruption.

About $80 million is also available to domestic users of upland and extra-long staple cotton. Upland cotton is predominantly grown in Louisiana.

USDA also informed dairy producers and processors about plans for the Dairy Donation Program (DDP) as established in the Consolidated Appropriations Act of 2021. The program will facilitate the timely donation of dairy products to nonprofit organizations that distribute food to persons in need and prevent and minimize food waste. For more information, visit www.ams.usda.gov/notices.

USDA launched the Pandemic Assistance for Producers initiative in March with $6.5 billion in available funding to address shortfalls. There is also a focus on strengthening outreach to underserved producers and communities and small and medium agricultural operations as well as beginning farmers and ranchers, socially disadvantaged producers and/or veteran producers.

SPICY SWEET JALAPENO BRIE CRESCENTS

Submitted by Panola Pepper

Ingredients:

- 1 8 ounce can refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
- 1 8 ounce round brie cheese
- 3 tablespoons Panola Spicy Sweet Jalapeno Peppers, chopped
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 pear, unpeeled and sliced
- 1 apple, unpeeled and sliced

Instructions:

Heat oven to 350 degrees F. Spray cookie sheet with cooking spray. Unroll dough, separate dough crosswise into 2 sections. Press dough to form 2 squares, firmly pressing perforations to seal. Place 1 dough square on cookie sheet. Cut cheese horizontally into 2 equal layers. Place bottom half of cheese on center of dough on cookie sheet. Spread Panola Spicy Sweet Jalapeno Peppers over cheese. Top with remaining cheese half. Lay other dough square over the cheese. Bring the bottom dough up around sides, pressing and pinching dough. Brush dough with beaten egg. Bake 20 to 30 minutes or until deep golden brown. Cool 15 minutes before serving. To serve, place warm pastry-wrapped cheese on platter. Arrange fruit around cheese.

PALEO BANANA NUT MUFFINS

Submitted by Renee Dillard of Guidry Organic Farms

Ingredients:

- 3 ripe bananas
 - 2 tablespoons maple syrup
 - 3 pasture raised eggs
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla
 - ¼ cup coconut oil, melted
 - ¼ Guidry Organic Farms Pecan Butter
 - ⅓ cup coconut flour
 - ½ teaspoon baking powder
 - ½ teaspoon baking soda
 - 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- Optional: add in ⅓ cup of chopped pecans or nuts of choice

Instructions:

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Grease muffin tin and set aside. In one bowl, add all ingredients in order then combine well with whisk. Then mix in chopped pecans/nuts if desired. Fill muffin tin with batter then slightly tap tin on the counter to make sure all the batter settles evenly into the muffin tin cups. Bake for 12 minutes then check with toothpick to see if comes out clean. If not, add 5 minutes then check again. Bake until nicely golden color. Let cool then store in an airtight container in the fridge for up to 5 days.

USDA announces new pandemic assistance for producers

Baton Rouge, La. (March 25, 2021) – Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M., said the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is establishing new programs to aid farmers, ranchers and producers with financial assistance as a result of COVID-19 market disruptions.

The USDA is dedicating at least $6 billion toward a new initiative called the USDA Pandemic Assistance for Producers. There will also be a focus on small and socially disadvantaged producers, specialty crop and organic producers, timber harvesters, among others.

Existing programs such as the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program (CFAP), direct payments to producers who suffered losses during the pandemic, will also stay in place where statutory authority allows.

The USDA re-opened sign-up for CFAP 2 for at least 60 days.

Strain said, “I urge our producers to stay informed. Pandemic assistance continues to be updated and those who may have not been eligible before may be eligible now.”

For more information, ag producers may go to www.farmers.gov or contact their local parish FSA office.

Warm, rainy weather brings vegetable plant diseases

By Johnny Morgan
LSU AgCenter

Current weather conditions may present Louisiana vegetable growers with great challenges to combat plant diseases.

Raj Singh, director of the LSU AgCenter Plant Diagnostic Center, said vegetables are susceptible to a wide variety of plant pathogens, including, fungi, water molds, bacteria and viruses.

“Some plant pathogens affect roots, and others cause disease on aboveground plant parts,” Singh said. “Most plant pathogens that affect aboveground plant parts require high humidity and temperatures to be successful in causing diseases, and these optimal conditions aid in their faster development and rapid spread.”

Bacterial plant pathogens require free water on foliage to enter plant tissue and cause infection, said Singh, who is known across Louisiana as “the plant doctor.” One such bacterial disease, known as bacterial leaf spot of peppers, is caused by Xanthomonas species.

The pathogen may produce symptoms on all aboveground plant parts. Initial symptoms appear as small, brown, water-soaked lesions. As the disease develops, lesions become necrotic in the center. During prolonged rainy weather, the pathogen spreads through splashing rainwater to nearby healthy plants.

“Bacterial lesions coalesce and result in excessive premature defoliation. Defoliation of leaves exposes pepper fruits to direct sunlight and may lead to sunscald,” Singh said.

Another disease that rapidly develops during prolonged rainy and warm weather is early blight of tomatoes.

It is a fungal disease and may affect all aboveground plant parts. The disease is more damaging on foliage and starts on older foliage first and then progresses up the plant.

“Symptoms appear as small, dark-colored, circular lesions surrounded by yellow tissue,” Singh said. “As the lesions expand, concentric rings or ridges become evident within them.”

If favorable weather conditions prevail during fruit production, the disease causes excessive defoliation, exposing the fruit to potential damage from the sun and causing sunscald.

Successful disease management in home gardens and commercial vegetable production systems requires an integrated approach and begins with rapid and accurate identification of the cause of the problem.

“Prevention is the key to successfully managing plant disease,” he said. “When available, resistant or tolerant varieties should be planted.”

Start with clean, disease-free seeds and seedlings. Fungicide-treated seeds may help avoid pathogen infection.

Vegetable growers must choose a well-drained planting site or plant on raised beds that allow for adequate drainage. Plant in sunny locations with good air circulation to reduce the length of time the foliage remains wet.

Avoid the use of overhead irrigation and water in the early morning hours to reduce the extended period of wetness. Water on a regular basis, but do not overwater. If a disease occurs, avoid planting the same or other susceptible plants in the same location in the following year.

Good sanitation practices, including cleaning tools, may reduce the disease spread. Avoid working with wet plants, especially plants infected with foliar bacterial pathogens. Remove severely affected plants and properly discard them. Remove crop debris from the fields once harvest is completed.

Many fungicides and some bactericides are available to aid in the management of these plant diseases, but they should always be used in conjunction with cultural practices intended to modify the environment to make it less conducive to disease development.

Fixed copper or other fungicide and bactericide sprays applied prior to the onset of rainy periods will provide some protection. Follow the product label while handling and applying chemical pesticides.

For complete detailed information on use of fungicides, refer to the LSU AgCenter Plant Disease Management Guide at www.lsuagcenter.com.
