MIKE STRAIN DVM, COMMISSIONER

Cue the music...

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas, everywhere you go. There's a tree in the LDAF, a Leyland Cypress at the Strain house as well...

This year you'll find the Strain family rockin' around our fresh cut Christmas tree, letting the Christmas spirit ring. Later we'll have some Louisiana Pecan Pie and we'll do some caroling.

Susan and I are in great spirits ready for a Christmas filled with love, family, and fantastic Louisiana local ingredients. Louisiana is a bountiful state that produces many agricultural products, making the perfect Christmas gifts for your family and friends.

So have a holly jolly Christmas. And when you walk to the farmers market, say hello to friends you know and everyone you meet.

This Christmas, visit your local farmers markets, roadside stands, and the local section of your grocery store for jams, jellies, honey, pickled okra, goat milk soap, local wine, spirits, and many other specialty items. Consider the gifts of plants and herbs from local nurseries. And food baskets filled with sweet potatoes and Louisiana citrus.

Deck the halls with bells of holly. 'Tis the season to be jolly. Remember your farmers this holiday season and buy fresh, buy local, and buy Certified Louisiana products.

And have yourself a Merry Louisiana Christmas now....

Feeding Louisiana

By Jim Dempsey

While large holiday gatherings and a declining unemployment rate may indicate a return to normal for most Louisianans, it is important to remember that for hundreds of thousands of Louisianans, “normal” doesn’t equate to financial stability. Prior to COVID-19, a whopping 750,000 Louisianans qualified as food insecure. Yet Louisiana’s food crisis is more pronounced now than ever in the wake of a pandemic and two brutal hurricane seasons. When a family cannot make ends meet due to some combination of limited income, rising prices on grocery store shelves, or unexpected expenses (e.g a medical emergency, car accident), that family is forced to choose between that expense and basic needs such as food.

Many Louisianans are just one job loss or medical crisis away from food insecurity, defined as a lack of consistent access to enough food to live an active, healthy life. Some people, including children and seniors, may be at greater risk of hunger - the un- easy or painful sensation caused by lack of food - than others.

As the pandemic progressed in 2020, the rate of food insecurity rose to affect 1-in-4 Louisianans and 1-in-3 Louisiana children. As of March 2021, an estimated 805,290 Louisianans (including 282,000 children) continued to experience food insecurity in the state.

Feeding Louisiana, the state food bank association, supports the collaborative efforts of the state’s five regional food banks - located in Alexandria, Baton Rouge, Monroe, New Orleans and Shreveport - to accomplish their policy and advocacy objectives, in addition to their food sourcing and fundraising efforts.

To meet the unprecedented need created by the COVID-19 pandemic, Louisiana’s food bank network distributed roughly 120 million pounds of food, a 67% increase from the last non-pandemic year. During the ongoing Hurricane Ida recovery efforts alone, the network distributed the

CHICKEN AND SAUSAGE GUMBO

Submitted by TJ's Specialty Products

Ingredients:

- 1 5 pound chicken or hen, cut into pieces
- 2 pounds pork sausage, smoked and cut into bite sized pieces
- 2 large onions, diced
- ½ cup celery, diced
- ½ cup bell peppers, diced
- 1 cup parsley, chopped
- ½ cup onion tops, chopped
- 5 cloves garlic, chopped
- ½ cup Oil
- ½ cup flour
- 3 tablespoons T. J's Dry Rub Seasoning Mix or Salt & Pepper
- 2 gallons water
- 1 teaspoon T. J's Cajun Filé
- 1 tablespoon T. J's Cajun Filé (optional - See Tips)

Instructions:

Cut chicken in pieces, wash, and season with T. J's Dry Rub Cajun Seasoning Mix or Salt & Pepper to taste. Brown the pieces well on all sides in a well-oiled heavy pot. Set pieces aside on a platter when done. Add a half cup of water to browned bits at the bottom of the pot and stir to deglaze the pot. Continue to cook gravy down stirring occasionally; add water as necessary to keep from burning. Reserve gravy. Par boil sausage for about 20 minutes to remove fat. Make roux by heating a cup of oil in a heavy pot on a high fire. Stir in flour into heated oil and brown reducing heat to a medium fire. Constantly stir the flour until it turns a chocolate brown (medium-dark roux); be careful not to burn roux or it will give off a bitter flavor. Add onions, celery, bell peppers, ½ cup of parsley, and garlic to roux. This will cool the roux down to help keep it from burning. Reduce heat to medium - low and continue to stir. Remember, that the roux will continue to cook and darken. Add water and reserved gravy to roux and bring to a boil. Lower fire and simmer for a 3-4 hours. The longer this juice simmers the more intense the flavors. After simmering the juice for at least 2 hours, add the sausage and chicken pieces to gumbo and continue to simmer for about 2 hours. Skim gumbo of any grease or fat and discard. 20 minutes before serving add remainder of the Onion Tops and Parsley to the gumbo and continue to simmer. Serve over freshly steamed rice with a sprinkle of T. J's Cajun Filé on top.

equivalent of more than 9 million meals across Southeast Louisiana.

Food banks operate targeted programs, including food boxes for seniors and summer feeding/after-school meals for children. The network itself includes partnerships with nearly 1,000 community- and faith-based organizations statewide.

Feeding Louisiana's advocacy efforts helped to ensure that more than 630,000 Louisiana children received assistance to cover the cost of school meals lost due to virtual or hybrid learning, low-income families received a 25% increase in monthly SNAP benefits, and that child poverty would be reduced by up to 50% through the expanded Child Tax Credit. Moving forward, Feeding Louisiana's top priority is to secure a state allocation of $10 million for food banks to further its distributions through expanded sourcing relationships with Louisiana growers and producers.

Feeding Louisiana and our network of regional food banks need your support. It is easy to make a difference - just visit www.feedinglouisiana.org/donate. A contribution of $1 can serve up to 4 meals to those in need around the state. You can also sign up for Feeding Louisiana's mailing list at www.feedinglouisiana.org for updates on hunger and food insecurity in your state.

ShiShi Gashira makes winter landscapes come to life

By Heather Kirk-Ballard

If you've noticed the sudden explosion of beautiful rose-pink flowers dotting the landscapes these past few weeks, you have witnessed one of the top-performing shrubs for Louisiana landscapes: ShiShi Gashira.

This plant is often listed as Camellia sasanqua in the trade, but it is actually part of the Camellia hiemalis species. Named a Louisiana Super Plant in the fall of 2010, ShiShi Gashira has long been an outstanding shrub for the landscape, and its history goes back hundreds of years.

According to the American Camellia Society, ShiShi Gashira originated in Ikeda City, Japan, where it was first mentioned in recorded history in 1894. It was featured in a nursery catalog as early as 1935. This shrub has been around for a long time, and its reliable beauty is why it is such a staple in the landscape.

This evergreen, dwarf shrub has a profusion of rose-pink, semi-double blooms with golden-yellow centers on stems with dark green, glossy foliage in late fall through early winter. ShiShi Gashira makes an excellent selection as a foundation planting around houses because of its gorgeous green foliage that remains year-round. The winter bloom time brings beautiful color to the landscape as many of our other landscape plants are going dormant.

ShiShi Gashira camellia shrubs can be grown as a focal piece of the landscape, planted en masse to create a stunning splash of color or grown closely together to create a colorful low hedge. They have a unique weeping form that can be used to create a beautiful backdrop or winter woodland garden setting.

ShiShi Gashira grows at a moderate pace, reaching a mature size of 4 to 5 feet tall and 6 to 8 feet wide. Older plantings — such as the specimens at the J.C. Miller horticulture building on the LSU campus — can reach heights of 6 or more feet.

In general, camellias are a slow-growing shrub best suited for USDA hardiness zones 7 to 10. Unlike the traditional camellias from the Camellia japonica species that require filtered sun, ShiShi Gashiras grow well in full sun.

Camellias prefer well-drained, acidic soils with a pH between 5.0 and 6.0. They pair well with companion plants that also prefer more acidic soils such as azaleas, Japanese maples, lily of the valley (pieris), rhododendrons and hydrangeas. You'll often find camellias as an understory to pine trees, which thrive in acidic soils.

In south Louisiana, alkaline soils can cause problems. In north Louisiana, flower buds are often damaged by colder temperatures.

It is important to maintain a 2-to-3-inch layer of mulch year-round to prevent weeds, provide organic matter, help retain moisture and protect roots from intense summer heat. Water regularly when the top 3 inches of soil is dry.

Older, established plants can live off rainfall and are a great deal more tolerant of full sun and drying winds. New plantings should be watered regularly, and one should consider installing irrigation. Younger plants are less tolerant of sun and winds. Fertilize with an azalea-camellia fertilizer or a complete fertilizer such as 13-13-13 in late winter before new growth begins.

Camellias, like most flowering shrubs, should be pruned immediately after they have finished blooming. This allows the shrub time to form new growth and flower buds before the next cycle of bloom. Pruning does not have to be done annually, just as needed.

While camellias don't have any major disease problems, tea scale is a common insect pest of flowering camellias. Scales are small insects that attach themselves to the leaves, mainly at the midrib of the leaf, and extract plant juices.

In the spring, the next generation of scales hatch from their eggs. Known as crawlers, these young scales eventually attach themselves to the undersides of leaves. Adult scales are very resistant to insecticides.

Treat early in the crawler stage. Apply insecticides so that they cover the bottom surface of the leaves. Repeat treatments may be needed with heavy infestations. Light to moderate infestations can be treated with oil sprays when temperatures are cool so as not to burn the plants. It may take two to three years to bring heavy infestation under control.

Every landscape should feature a camellia of some sort (in my humble opinion). There is no limit to the opportunities, with more than 200 species and 20,000 varieties of camellias available.

Camellia flowers come in all sorts of colors from white, red, pink and variegated varieties with several different flower forms. Individual blooms are relatively large — up to 5 inches across — and come in many forms: single, semi-double, formal double, peony, anemone and rose forms. The blooming opportunities seem endless, and they are a wonderful cut flower to be enjoyed indoors and shared with loved ones.

AgCenter issues call for entries for 2023 Get It Growing calendar photos

By Olivia McClure

BATON ROUGE — Got an eye for photography? The LSU AgCenter wants your best shots of lawns, gardens, flowers, trees and vegetables.

Faculty at the AgCenter are beginning to put together the 2023 edition of the popular Get It Growing calendar. They're seeking high-quality photos from across Louisiana to illustrate the publication, which features seasonal gardening advice and horticultural how-to articles.

"We encourage gardening lovers and photographers to submit their photos for the Get It Growing Calendar," said Elma Sue McCallum, the project coordinator. "It's a great way to share their work with the gardening community and be a part of a wonderful educational resource for Louisiana gardeners."

The deadline for entries is March 31, 2022. Entries must be high-resolution digital images and submitted online at www.LSUAgCenter.com/GIGCC.

All images must be the original work of the photographer submitting the image. Each person is asked to limit their entries to 25 or fewer of their best photos.

Submission guidelines can be found at www.LSUAgCenter.com/GetItGrowingCalendar.

About 40 photos will be selected for the calendar. Twelve photos — one for each month of the year — will run full page, and one will be used on the cover. The remaining images will appear throughout the calendar.

Photographers whose pictures are chosen will have their names listed in the calendar and receive copies of the publication.

The 2022 edition of the calendar is on sale now. Information and links to order are available online at www.LSUAgCenter.com/OnlineStore.

The current edition includes monthly gardening tips from LSU AgCenter horticulturist Heather Kirk-Ballard, a feature on hydrangeas, illustrated instructions on creating a rain garden, a glossary of gardening terms and a Louisiana climate zone map.
