Prevent wildfires

A 258-acre wildfire in northwest Louisiana smolders after LDAF wildland firefighters contained the blaze.

Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M., said a Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) District One wildland firefighter received minor injuries combating a 258-acre wildland fire in Webster and Bossier parishes on Sunday, Sept. 19.

The employee was treated at a local hospital emergency room for minor burns and was back at work on Monday,

Strain said.

District One is based in Haughton.

The fire is suspected to have been caused by an outdoor trash fire in Webster Parish that spread out of control, LDAF forestry investigators said. The cause of the fire is still under investigation. The fire eventually consumed 258-acres of a ten-year-old pine plantation.

The State Fair of Louisiana's 2010 edition, 1,000 Flavors of Fun, will be held Oct. 21 through Nov. 7.

"Our 2010 theme 1,000 Flavors of Fun, is a great expression of why the State Fair means so much to people," said State Fair Manager Chris Giordano. "The State Fair has an endless supply of fun things to do and we want people to experience them all!"

Of interest to Louisiana livestock aficionados are the livestock shows. 4-Hers and Future Farmers of America participants match up their cattle, goat, swine and poultry entries to see who will win the blue ribbons.

The Ark-La-Tex Agricultural Council (ALTAC) Jr. Livestock Sale will be held Oct. 27 at the State Fair of Louisiana Livestock Sale Arena at 9 a.m.

Steers, goats, sheep, swine, poultry, wood/metal. For more information, call 318-987-3769.

In addition to the ALTAC show, the Louisiana Bred Futurity Steer Sale will be held Oct. 22 at 3 p.m. The show is for Louisiana 4-H and FFA exhibitor members only. For more information, call 318-636-0649 or e-mail at livestock@StateFairOfLouisiana.com.

Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M., will be attending the fair.

"Raising a livestock animal for a competitive show is not easy," Strain said. "It takes hard work, but the intangible benefits gained far outweigh the efforts these young people put into their projects."

While the State Fair has its roots in livestock shows and agriculture, it's also focused on being a top choice for affordable family entertainment by providing attractions for all ages that are free with gate admission. The attractions include the circus, the safari area, exhibits and the livestock and agricultural areas.

Also free with admission are the many headline concerts during the fair. This year's lineup includes the Bellamy Brothers, Storage 24, Jeff and Sheri Easter, Midnight Star, Rock N Roll Heaven, Jason Boland, Wayne Toups and A Taste of Mexico Hispanic Heritage Day.

Rodeo lovers will have an opportunity to watch some of the biggest names on the professional circuit compete at the State Fair of Louisiana Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association Rodeo on Oct. 29 and 30 in the Hirsch Memorial Coliseum.

New requirements for racehorses in effect

The Louisiana State Racing Commission passed new rules Aug. 30 requiring all horses entering Louisiana racetracks or approved training facilities to possess a negative equine piroplasmiasis (EP) test, Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M., said.

The new rules go into effect Sept. 26, 2010.

In 2009, an EP outbreak occurred at a Texas quarter horse ranch that provides brood stock nationally and internationally and raised concerns about the risk to Louisiana horses. Additional, but unassociated positive cases have been discovered among racing quarter horses in several states.

“Many Louisiana veterinarians are already testing horses in anticipation of the new rule,” Strain said. “The surveillance detected a few positive equine piroplasmiasis cases in the state. EP is considered to be a foreign animal disease and LDAF will respond appropriately to positive cases that are disclosed.”

The Louisiana Animal Disease Diagnostic Laboratory, housed within LSU’s School of Veterinary Medicine located in Baton Rouge, recently received approval to run EP tests. The lab is the only Louisiana lab approved to run the tests.

EP is a tick-borne disease caused by the red blood cell parasites Babesia caballi and Theileria equi. Ticks ingest blood from infected equines and then bite uninfected horses, spreading the disease through the blood feeding process.

Ticks carrying the parasites can be moved from one place to another via hay, bedding and feed as well as animal to animal.

The disease may also be spread by the improper use of contaminated needles and other skin-penetrating instruments. Pregnant mares can pass the infection to foals in the uterus.

EP symptoms may become apparent seven to 22 days after infection. Clinical symptoms include weakness, loss of appetite, fever, anemia, jaundiced mucous membranes, swollen abdomen and labored breathing. However, horses may also carry the parasite and show no symptoms. Equines that survive the acute infection phase may carry the parasites for an undetermined period in their bloodstreams.

Strain said 13 LDAF personnel operating one fire-detecting aircraft and four tractor-plov units responded to the emergency call about 12:10 p.m. LDAF crews contained the fire nine hours later.

Strain said no homes or structures were damaged by the fire, but the burn line came within 850 feet of a mobile home park near Doyline.

"It's been very hot and dry lately so it's extremely important to be cautious when burning outdoors," Strain said. "Fires can easily flame out of control under these conditions and do a lot of damage to property and forest investments."

LDAF Forest Protection Branch officials estimated the fire cost more than $6,000 to contain.

Since the beginning of the year, 1,396 fires have burned more than 13,524 acres of wildland, LDAF Forestry statistics show.

September's LDAF fire report indicates that 135 fires have already burned more than 1,069 acres.

Strain said large areas of Louisiana are measuring more than 600 on the Keetch-Byram Drought Index (KBDI). A link to the KBDI website is listed on the LDAF website at www.ldaf.la.gov. The KBDI measures soil moisture levels to an eight-inch depth and indicates the dryness of a land area.

"Any area over 600 on the KBDI map is very susceptible to wildfire," Strain said. "All caution should be used when planning a controlled burn, outdoor cookout or using any outdoor flame."

Lake Charles schools help protect coast

By Bruce Schultz
LSU AgCenter

Students from two Lake Charles schools drew a line in the sand against coastal erosion.

The students hit the beach on Sept. 19-20 to place 5,000 plants of bitter panicum to act as a defense against the attacks of wave action and high tides at Little Florida Beach, about eight miles west of Holly Beach.

The corps was made up of more than 100 middle school honor society students from St. Margaret Catholic School and Immaculate Conception Catholic School.

Student Julia Boullt said the outing was a good alternative to sitting in a classroom. "I like jumping on the shovel," she said, leaping onto the tool to create a hole for planting a sprig of bitter panicum.

Student Dustin Guidry had an overhand technique to jabbing at the sand, while Madelin Wilson carefully dug holes. She said the work wasn't difficult. "It kinda depends on the sand."

And she was clear on the purpose of the project. "I know it will stop erosion."

Boullt and several of the students said they had never been to the coastline, only an hour from their school. But many of them had been to Florida beaches.

Parent Frank Elliot took a morning off from his job as an environmental lawyer to help his son Michel. Elliot said he hunted at nearby Johnson's Bayou. "The marsh has changed so much in the past 35 years."

His wife, Michelle Elliot, also served as a chaperone for the outing.

"I think this is a great program," she said. "It's putting into practice what we teach them. This makes it real."

On the first day, students competed to put the most plants in the ground. The winning team's total was 204, and they won New Orleans Saints water bottles.

Science teacher Tonya Knollmeyer of ICCS said the project fits with her lessons on environmental science. "It's actually included in one of our grade level expectations."

Hilary Collis, co-manager of the LSU AgCenter 4-H program, Youth Wetlands, said the planting project was funded by a state grant from the Office of Coastal Protection and Restoration.

"The whole point is to get as many kids as possible doing projects like this," Collis said. "This is our kickoff event in southwest Louisiana."

She said a series of similar events will be ongoing, including installation of wood duck boxes on the Bogue Chitto River, trash collection at the LSU Lakes, tending plants at a coastal plant nursery in New Orleans, and planting trees.

Collis said Youth Wetlands can also help teachers by providing lesson plans and materials by signing up at www.LSUAgCenter.com/yw. There is no charge.

Alton Puckett, LSU AgCenter

regional coordinator for Youth Wetlands, said he works with 40 schools in southwest Louisiana, and he put the word out that vegetative projects needed students to do the work.

"What we want to do is make sure these kids get exposed to the fact that we have erosion and that we have a problem," Puckett said.

Besides creating a beach protection, he said, the project has intangible benefits. "Our goal is to train future leaders."

And he said he hopes the projects might inspire some students to consider an environmental career. A former student has gone on to become a biologist for the state Department of Wildlife and Fisheries, he said. Puckett said he also has identified one student who shows promise in the field.

Ashley Mullens, co-manager of the Youth Wetlands program, said 5,000 is the largest number of plants established on the beach by Youth Wetlands. "I would definitely say this is a success."

GET LOST IN A LOUISIANA CORN MAZE

Harvest time in Louisiana has always been a fun time. No matter what part of the state you live, hayrides, bonfires, street dances (une fais do-do, if you live in Cajun country) and chewing on sugarcane remain some of the traditional celebratory rituals.

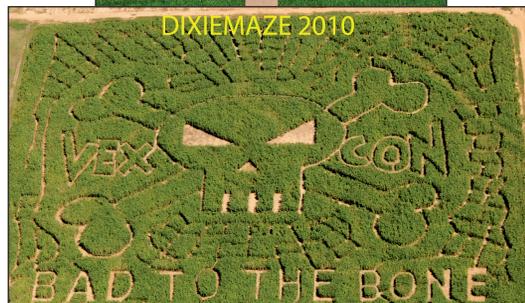

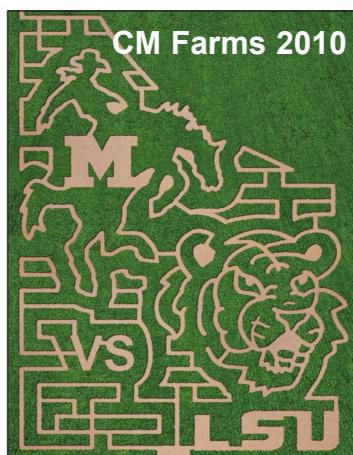

Add exploring a corn maze to the list.

What's a corn maze? Corn maze is a growing trend in agritourism. A field of corn (or sorghum) is planted and a unique pattern is cut into the growing corn. The pattern sketches a picture that is visible from the sky.

In Louisiana, it might be a picture of an alligator or an LSU tiger. Whatever picture is cut into the field, folks are willing to spend money to come and "get lost" in a corn maze for an evening of good, wholesome family fun.

This year, at least five corn mazes are open for business.

In the Baton Rouge area, the Cajun Country Corn Maze, located on Hwy. 16 near Pine Grove and the AgMazing Corn Maze, 9200 Hwy. 190 West in Port Allen will be open.

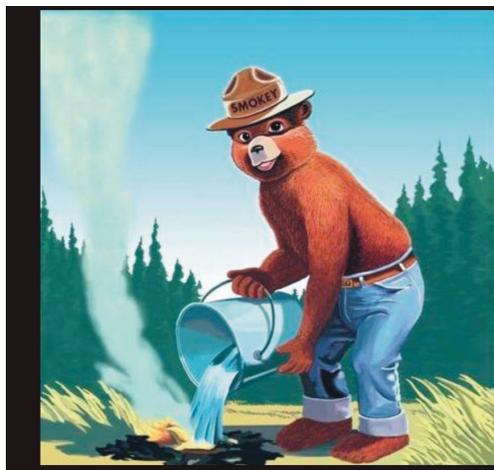

For 2010, the Cajun Country Corn Maze features a New Orleans Saints fleur-de-lis theme. It opened Sept. 18 and will be available through Thanksgiving.

In Shreveport, on lonely Sentell Road near Dixie, Dixie Maze will be open through Nov. 20 north of Shreveport. The Dixie Maze has a spooky skull and crossbones pattern cut into it.

In the mid-state region near Alexandria on Hwy. 71, a clown maze with the "clownin' around" motto is featured. The Alexandria maze is open through Oct. 31.

In addition to the corn mazes, other activities like hayrides, hay-bale mazes and rides are offered. All have concessions and offer season passes and special group rates.
