2013 Year in Review

2013 is coming to an end and once again Louisiana farmers had a productive year. According to the LSU AgCenter, many of the state's major commodities saw record yields for a second year in a row. Corn, soybeans, grain sorghum, cotton and rice all had record yields. Yields were also high for wheat and sugarcane although neither set a record this past year. The Louisiana agriculture industry's estimated value for 2012 is $11.4 billion. That's up from the nearly $11 billion amount in 2011. In a few months, we should have the estimated value for 2013.

We continue to monitor the progress, or lack of, of the Farm Bill. We will continue to push for a permanent Farm Bill at the national level. It's the only way our farmers will have some certainty on what crops to plant and how much should be planted.

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry (LDAF) will continue its efforts to streamline while maintaining vital services to the public. We continue to look for ways to save money and run this department more efficiently through technology or other methods such as using fuel efficient vehicles.

In 2013, Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V. M., was named secretary-treasurer for the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA). Serving in this capacity will allow Louisiana to have a bigger voice on Capitol Hill. NASDA's mission is to represent the state departments of agriculture in the development, implementation, and communication of policy and programs which support and promote the American agricultural industry while protecting consumers and the environment. Strain said this is a very important time in agriculture - from food safety and food security issues to getting the Farm Bill passed - he added that he looks forward to helping promote and advance this important industry. By 2017, Strain is expected to serve as president of this national organization.

Happy New Year everyone! May 2014 be one filled with happiness, good health and much success.

HAMMOND, La. – Happy New Year! It is time for new projects, new resolutions and making plans for another gardening season in Louisiana. We may not realize how fully blessed we are in this great state to be able to grow some of the landscape plants that are available to us.

For this new year, make plans to spend more time gardening, landscape and planting. It also fits in well with those weight loss and exercise plans.

A resolution we need to consider for 2014 is to do soil testing. Most of us have no idea what our soil pH is in our landscape beds and home lawns. Soil pH, simply put, is a measure of soil acidity. A soil pH of 7 is considered neutral while a soil pH below 7 is acid and a soil pH above 7 is considered alkaline or basic.

Most ornamental plants we grow in Louisiana prefer a slightly acid soil. Azaleas, blueberries, gardenias and camelias prefer an even more acid soil – normally in the 5.5 range. When considering lawns, centipede grass likes acid soil while St. Augustine grass prefers neutral to slightly alkaline soil. Soil pH is raised by adding lime and lowered by adding sulfur, but these additions should always be based on the results of a soil test

The best way to know your soil's acidity is through a soil test. Now is a great time to take a soil sample to get analyzed through the LSU AgCenter's Soil Testing and Plant Analysis Lab in Baton Rouge for $10 per sample. You can find information and obtain forms here or visit your parish AgCenter extension office for assistance.

In the next month, we also need to properly prune crape myrtles. There is almost no better horticultural resolution to make. Prune crape myrtles by removing interior wood, also called thinning. Do not prune crape myrtles by doing height-reduction pruning or "topping" method that is unfortunately so prevalent these days. Pruning this way does not encourage more blooms, contrary to public opinion, and the natural growth habit and beauty of this great plant is lost.

Control weeds in 2014. A little bit of time hand weeding landscape beds goes a long way in preventing weeds long term. Use mulch. Pine straw is an excellent mulch material for weed suppression. Use 2 inches on flowers, 3 inches on shrubs and 4 inches around trees. You can also use pre-emergent herbicides in landscape beds 2-3 times annually. Excellent products are Preen and Amaze. Read the label prior to application. These products are safe for you to use and safe for plants in existing beds.

Try some new plants in 2014. We have mentioned Louisiana Super Plants before. Some are new to some people, but they have a proven track record of being excellent landscape performers in Louisiana. Our next selection of Louisiana Super Plants will debut this spring. Be on the lookout.

Attending gardening events is always fun. It is a great way to see what is going on and to visit with other gardeners and check out plant vendors. Not to mention, almost every garden show has great educational presentations. The LSU AgCenter has garden shows, garden days and like events in Hammond, Baton Rouge, Covington, Houma, New Orleans and many other places around the state. Locate those near you and attend.

Best wishes for 2014 from the horticulture faculty and staff at the LSU AgCenter's Hammond Research Station and around the state.

You can see more about work being done in landscape horticulture by visiting the LSU AgCenter Hammond Research Station website. Also, like us on Facebook. You can find an abundance of landscape information for both home gardeners and industry professionals at both sites.

Arbor Day celebration set for Jan. 18 at Botanic Gardens in Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE, La. - Burden Museums and Gardens has planned a day of family fun with a variety of activities and Smokey Bear at the fourth annual Arbor Day celebration on Jan. 18 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

The event is presented by the LSU AgCenter Botanic Gardens, the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry and the Burden Horticulture Society, which welcomes participants of all ages to come enjoy the fun.

"Visitors are invited to plant a tree in the Burden woods and participate in a 5-K Fun Hike and scavenger hunt through the Trees & Trails system," said Jeff Kuehny, director of the Botanic Gardens.

Family members participating in the tree planting will be given a card with the tree name and GPS coordinates so they can monitor the growth of trees they plant, Kuehny said.

In addition to planting a tree in the Burden woods, each family will receive a tree seedling to plant at home. The seedlings are provided by the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry.

"New this year will be lumberjack demonstrations," Kuehny said. "In addition, students from the LSU School of Renewable and Natural Resources will demonstrate their expertise at archery, tree climbing, 'toe chop' ax styles and more."

The activities will include chainsaw wood sculpting demonstrations and sculptures for sale. Refreshments also will be on sale.

Attendees can warm up at one of two bonfires, and hayrides will run from the bonfire at the Barton Arboretum to the bonfire at the orangerie for those who are not up to hiking the Black Swamp Trail to the arboretum.

Children also will have the opportunity to make decorations that wildlife can eat and learn more about trees and leaves with a leaf stamp activity during the StoryTime book reading beginning at 9 a.m. at the orangerie. There will be readings and activities every 30 minutes with the last reading beginning at 10:30 a.m. and the program ending at 11 a.m.

Admission is $5 for individuals; those ages 3 and under will be admitted free. The proceeds will be used to support the Project Learning Tree program for children conducted by the Burden Horticulture Society.
