We All SCREAM

By Sam Irwin

For Ice Cream

After more than 90 years serving south Louisiana with dairy products, Kleinpeter Farms Dairy has launched a new ice cream line. Chocolate and vanilla flavors were launched Jan. 31 with other Louisiana-inspired flavors to follow.

Kleinpeter Farms Dairy President Jeff Kleinpeter of Baton Rouge has bright red hair.

"It's the German influence," Kleinpeter said. Kleinpeter's Swiss ancestors settled along the Mississippi River near St. Gabriel in 1774, not far from the so-called German Coast of St. Charles and St. John the Baptist parishes.

The Germanic god Thor also had red hair. Lighting was said to emanate from Thor's rusty beard.

Kleinpeter doesn't send out fiery bolts when he tugs on the bill of his omnipresent Kleinpeter Milk baseball cap but you can feel the electric enthusiasm in the air when he talks about Kleinpeter ice cream, his company's latest endeavor. He and his sister, Chief Financial Officer Sue Anne Kleinpeter Cox, run the corporation.

His conversation is sparked with more than a few "Gollys," "Man!" and the occasional "Woos," when he talks about the ice cream project.

"We started thinking about developing ice cream nine months ago," Kleinpeter said. A broad grin flashes across his face when he recollects the concept. "Funny thing, it's about how long as it takes to have a baby. Man!"

The decision to make this grand multi-million dollar investment in ice cream wasn't part of a broader five-year-plan or anything like that?

"Heck no," Kleinpeter said. "I can't think that far ahead!"

But ice cream has been an idea circulating in the collective Kleinpeter brain trust ever since brothers Sib and Papa Kleinpeter milked that first cow for commercial purposes back in 1913.

Today, the Kleinpeter dairy milks the largest herd of milk cows - 750 - in the state.

"I have been asked all my life, 'why don't y'all do an ice cream?'" Kleinpeter said. "People say, 'We love your milk. The ice cream would certainly be great 'cause your milk is so good.'"

When he sat down and thought about the local milk market, ice cream wasn't that hard to figure out.

Kleinpeter's vanilla ice cream is chilled 22 degrees on the production line but will be flash frozen to a core of -45 within a four-hour period when packaged and shrink-wrapped.

"We have excess cream that we sell every week," Kleinpeter said. "I looked at how much milk we buy locally from family farms around Baton Rouge and wanted to do more for those farmers.

"We have production fluctuations up and down with our milk that we buy from our dairy and other farms and it causes our sales to fluctuate as well.

"To avoid these fluctuations, we thought it would be nice to put the cream into a shelf-stable, code date-stable product like ice cream."

And once he began considering ice cream, the ideas flowed like soft-serve ice cream at the Tastee-Freez. Who knew ice cream was brain food and capable of stimulating all kind of creative thought?

It was a given that the first two flavors from Kleinpeter would be perennial favorites vanilla and chocolate.

"We were trying to get people to think about what it means to buy local," Kleinpeter said. "It's real important to us to buy local and it's real important to consumers to buy local."

The Kleinpeter milk market is indeed a local one, strongest in Baton Rouge, New Orleans, the Northshore and down Bayou Lafourche. It only made sense for Kleinpeter ice cream to seek out local flavors as well.

That's when cane sugar, strawberries, pecans and pralines came into play.

"Look at Ponchatoula strawberries. Look at Bergeron's pecans (from New Roads). Look at Aunt Sally's pralines from New Orleans. We're going to use all of those flavors in our ice cream.

"We already know Louisiana food is the best in the world. Why not add value to the strawberries and pecans and put them in our ice cream?"

Kleinpeter admits he wasn't always a leader of environmental causes but he's jumped wholeheartedly into the "Buy fresh, See Kleinpeter ice cream, continued on page 12

Shade-tree seedling packets go on sale soon

The annual shade-tree seedling sale sponsored by the Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry will be held March 3-7 at LDAF headquarters in Baton Rouge and forestry district offices throughout the state, according to Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Mike Strain, D.V.M.

In Lafayette, the sale will be held March 1-8 with the exception of Sunday, March 2. New Orleans will have a one-day sale March 8.

"This is the perfect opportunity for homeowners to add beauty in an energy-efficient manner to their home or property. The seedlings are sold at a very reasonable price and the canopy offered by shade trees has a positive impact on the environment and lowers utility costs," Strain said. "You really can't go wrong with an investment in shade trees."

Forestry district offices are located in Hammond, Clinton, DeRidder, Oberlin, Olla, Woodworth, Natchitoches, Haughton, Monroe and New Orleans. The New Orleans sale will be held at the Parkway Partners office at 1137 Baronne St. Some other districts will hold sales in locations in addition to the office site. Dates and times will vary and will be publicized locally, Strain said.

"We suggest anyone interested in buying shade-tree seedlings look for local publicity on the sale or call the district office in their area to find out the exact times and locations seedlings will be available," Strain said.

Two types of seedling packets are available. A pine packet containing 20 seedlings costs $3. The other packet, comprised of six trees including two baldcypress and one each of Chinese elm, green ash, cherrybark oak and river birch, also sells for $3. Packet species content may vary in some cases, depending on availability.

All packets feature year-old, bare-root seedlings. They are available on a first-come basis and cannot be reserved in advance.

"We have sold out of certain species before the sale is over, especially some of the hardwoods, so we encourage people to come during the early part of the week," Strain said.

Species are all native to Louisiana and are well suited to the state's growing conditions. All are large trees at maturity and should be planted on sites where their limbs will not interfere with overhead utility lines or structures and their roots will not interfere with sewer lines, slab foundations, walkways or driveways as they mature.

Instructions for planting and care of the seedlings are included with the packets.

Check local media for exact dates, times and locations of the shade-tree seedling sale in your area.

LDAF firefighters help battle Texas blazes

A Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Forestry firefighting strike team has been sent to Granbury, Texas, to assist the Texas Forest Service with wildfires, Commissioner of Agriculture and Forestry Mike Strain, D.V.M., said today.

Strike team leader Mike Smith of Kentwood and tractor plow crew members Bill Carpenter, Clinton; Craig Gottschalk, Ponchatoula; Craig Honeycutt, Grayson; James Pool, Minden; Darrell Eaves, Merryville; and Oris Carrier, Oberlin, left in mid-February for Texas. They are expected to assist Texas Forestry officials for up to two weeks.

Along with the crew, LDAF also sent three Mack truck transports and three

John Deere 650 bulldozers to help prevent further wildfire breakouts.

Strain said the department is able to lend a hand to Texas right now because wildfire danger levels in Louisiana are moderate.

"We were requested to send any available manpower and equipment to assist in Texas," Strain said. "We're happy to help, but if our situation in Louisiana changes, the team and equipment will return immediately."

Strain said the Texas Forest Service activated the South-Central and Southeastern Forest Fire Compact agreements which allow member states to assist in a variety of emergencies if they are able.

4-H documentary to air in March

A half-hour TV documentary, "Louisiana's Lucky Clover: A Century of 4-H" will be broadcast for the first time on Louisiana Public Broadcasting (LPB) and its affiliate stations March 12 at 7:40 p.m.

Produced by the LSU AgCenter, the documentary tracks the formation and development of this youth organization from the first "corn club" in Avoyelles Parish in 1908 to today's vast network of clubs and projects across that state that involved about 225,000 young people in 2007, according to Paul Coreil, vice chancellor and director of the Louisiana Cooperative Extension Service.

"4-H is the largest youth organization in the country," Coreil said. "And Louisiana was one of the first states to recognize the potential."

The documentary uses rare photographs and film footage to guide viewers through the history, which includes many stories people today may not realize, said Mark Tassin, director of the LSU AgCenter 4-H and Youth Development program.

For example, during World War II young club members raised $3.5 million in war bonds, enough for the military to build a cargo ship, or liberty ship as they were called. The ship was named the "Floyd W. Spencer" in memory of a popular Louisiana 4-H agent and former LSU football player, Tassin said.

The documentary includes clips from interviews with more than 30 people, said Randy LaBauve, LSU AgCenter communications specialist and the documentary's producer. Among those featured are Lt. General Russel Honoré, East Baton Rouge Parish Mayor-President Kip Holden and Leonard Knapp Jr., grandson of Seaman Knapp, one of the founders of the nationwide Cooperative Extension Service.

"The club's symbol, the four-leaf clover, has proven to be the perfect representation of the young people, leaders, volunteers and agents who have, indeed, brought good luck and good fortune to Louisiana," Coreil said.

LaBauve will also be making arrangements for the documentary to air on other Louisiana stations during the course of the year. DVD copies of the documentary will be made available for sale later this year with the opening of the 4-H Museum in Mansura, which is in Avoyelles Parish. Proceeds from the sale will go to the Louisiana 4-H Foundation, Coreil said.

Louisiana Agriculture & Forestry Today

Strain: All rice seed must be tested for Liberty Link traits

Agriculture and Forestry Commissioner Mike Strain is reminding seed dealers and farmers that all rice seed in Louisiana must be tested for Liberty Link 601 traits.

"The Liberty Link rule was passed in May of 2007 to protect Louisiana's rice industry from embargos being placed on genetically modified rice containing Liberty Link traits," Strain explained. "The production of rice contributes more than $235 million to the state's economy so even the slightest disruption in the availability of markets for our product would be detrimental to the industry."

Trace amounts of genetically modified rice with Liberty Link 601 traits were originally detected in the U.S. rice supply in August 2006. Although USDA and FDA concluded after reviewing scientific data that there was no threat to human health, food safety or the environment, the European Union placed an embargo on U.S. rice. Other rice importing nations threatened to follow suit.

"Rice producing states had to determine how to best handle the Liberty Link issue. This led to the state's Seed Commission implementing a rule that says all rice seed must be tested for the presence of Liberty Link traits. If the rice seed is free of those traits, it can be sold and planted for crop production," Strain said. "If the seed is found to contain Liberty Link traits, it will be placed under a stop sale and either destroyed or sent to a mill that will accept the seed as grain."

To begin the testing process, seed dealers and farmers should contact the Department of Agriculture and Forestry for sampling. Field personnel will collect a sample and submit it to Biodiagnostics Laboratory Inc. in Wisconsin for testing. Biodiagnostics is approved by USDA to conduct the Liberty Link test. Once testing is complete, the department receives results from the lab and notifies the owner of the sample as to the results.

Samples can be retested if they test positive the first time, but a new sample will not be taken. The retest is only permitted on the original sample.

"Again, all of this is to protect our rice industry from the financial harm inadequate precautions might cause," Strain said. "Every rice-producing state has implemented rules and regulations regarding Liberty Link traits and Louisiana's are not out of line with what other states are doing."

Louisiana Lenten Cuisine

Shrimp Stuffed Potatoes

6 large baking potatoes
Vegetable oil for coating
8 tbsps. butter
2 cups grated sharp cheddar cheese
2 cups grated Monterey Jack cheese
2 cups sour cream
Salt and pepper to taste
1 lb. shrimp, peeled and sautéed
Paprika
Grated sharp cheddar cheese for sprinkling on top

Recipe continued on next card

Shrimp Stuffed Potatoes

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Wash and dry potatoes, then prick with a fork on sides. Coat with vegetable oil, place on foil covered baking sheet and bake for about 1 hour. Put butter in a large mixing bowl. When baked, slice each potato in half and gently scoop potato out into a bowl with butter. Using a mixer on high, mix potatoes, butter, sour cream, salt and pepper. Fold in shrimp and both cheeses. Gently stuff back into potato shells, pile mixture as high as you can on shells. Sprinkle each potato with cheese and paprika for color. Bake about 20 to 30 minutes until browned on top.

Louisiana Red Chouda'

6 slices bacon	4 tomatoes, peeled, seeded & chopped
1 large white onion, chopped	1 cup seafood stock
1 sweet bell pepper, chopped	1 cup vegetable stock
2 ribs celery, chopped	1 tsp. Louisiana Hot Sauce
1 large carrot, chopped	4 small red potatoes, quartered
2 garlic toes, crushed	1 lb. La. catfish filets, cut into bite size pieces
1/4 cup Italian leaf parsley, chopped	1 lb. La. crawfish tailmeat
1 (10 oz.) can Rotel spicy tomatoes, chopped	1 pint La. oysters with liquid
	Creole dry seasoning, to taste

Louisiana Red Chouda'

Fry bacon in a heavy pan until crisp. Remove bacon and drain. Add onions, bell pepper, celery and carrot to two tablespoons of the hot bacon drippings and cook until onions become translucent, but not brown. Add garlic, parsley, tomatoes (canned and fresh), both stocks, oyster liquid, hot sauce and potatoes and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer covered for 20 minutes or until potatoes are soft. Adjust salt level by using dry Creole seasoning. Add crawfish tail meat and catfish meat and simmer for five minutes. Add oysters, stir well and remove from the heat.

“Five years ago I wasn’t conscious about those things,” Kleinpeter said. “Not like I am today. It’s starting to mean more.

“Environmentally-conscious people are thinking about what’s better for our environment, buying Ponchatoula strawberries or buying strawberries from Mexico or California that are shipped hundreds of miles burning fossil fuels getting them here? People are starting to be more aware of that, as are we.

“It’s making a big difference. A local company like Kleinpeter coming out with ice cream after all these years, using local ingredients and local flavors and doing business with local people, it means a lot. And I’m glad for it, happy to do it.”

A new ice cream packing service line was purchased from Solo Company. The ice cream, cooled to a temperature of 21 degrees, is squirted into the colorful Kleinpeter tub. The machinery gently rotates the tub and ice cream within to eliminate air pockets. The lid is clamped down over the top and the filled tub is sent down the line to be shrink-wrapped in a three-pack.

The ice cream continues its ultimate trip to the consumer by making a stop in the spiral freezer where it is flash frozen to a core temperature of -45 degrees. Once the initial four-hour freeze process is completed, the product is stored in a 5000-square-foot freezer set down to an Antarctic -60 degrees.

Everyone within the Kleinpeter organization who is associated with the ice cream rollout, including executives, salespeople, supervisors and delivery drivers, is going through an intense ice cream boot camp and spending time on the production line.

“We think it’s important for everyone to know the ice cream production process so they can answer the customer’s questions,” Kleinpeter said.

The investment is sizable by any standard.

“We’ve got a freezer that can hold 300,000 half-gallons,” Kleinpeter said. “That’s a lot. Woo! Man!”

Talking about the giant emergency generator that can supply power to the entire Kleinpeter operation elicits further exclamations from the fiery Kleinpeter.

He points to the mammoth machinery. It’s about the size of a two bedroom home. “That’s an expensive son of a gun. Woo!”

“Let’s say the freezer was full with 300,000 half-gallons of ice cream,” Kleinpeter said. “You’re talking about more than a million dollars worth of product. Let’s say the power goes out for 10 hours. That’s not a big deal for most people. But ice crystals will form in the ice cream if the core temperature goes up to -10 degrees and back down to -20. We can’t afford that so it was better for us to install this generator that can run this entire facility, milk and ice cream. It’s better for us to do that than jeopardize our quality.”

Kleinpeter knows his rah-rah attitude can only take Kleinpeter Farms, and its new ice cream, so far. He credits commitment to quality, attention to detail, the willingness to do things right the first time and an incredible work ethic as the reasons for Kleinpeter’s continual success in southeast Louisiana.

“I believe we are still here because of the passion and pride we have for this business,” Kleinpeter said. “We’re willing to do the work and never stop making the quality better for our customers.

“My sister and I and my cousins are fourth generation. We’ve got members of the younger fifth generation working here and they’re learning about our passion and how we contribute and how we never stop trying to make it better for the customer. This ice cream is one of those steps.”

If you look closely you can almost see a spark fly out from the back of Kleinpeter’s red locks as he talks about his heritage and farm. He passionately believes it’s the right time for Kleinpeter to expand their market.

He’s betting the cow.

Milk a family affair for generations of Kleinpeters

When you think Kleinpeter Milk, you think Baton Rouge. It’s a natural fit. The Kleinpeter milk trucks have been rumbling through Capital City neighborhoods since 1913.

But the Kleinpeters have been in the Baton Rouge area much longer than that.

Patriarch Ben Kleinpeter gave a brief rundown of the Kleinpeter family history at a Jan. 31 press conference announcing Kleinpeter’s new ice cream line.

“My forefathers and brothers have dedicated everything in their life to promote this outfit right here,” Kleinpeter said. “We had six boys in my family and I don’t know how to this day that we finished high school because we were up and running at three o’clock in the morning. We delivered milk and then came right back to milk the cows and wash bottles. We did it all the old-fashioned way.”

The old-fashioned way meant the entire family was willing to work long hours to keep the Kleinpeter cows and customers happy and the Kleinpeter milk cartons prominently featured on Baton Rouge breakfast tables, school cafeterias and soda shops.

“I guarantee you my mother and father, my grandfather, my brothers and sisters too, we worked together,” Kleinpeter said. “We’re a big family.”

The old-fashioned way also meant self-sufficiency for more than 200 years, the 80-year-old Kleinpeter said.

“On August 12, 1774, Johann Kleinpeter, his wife Gertrude and seven children landed a flatboat at St. Gabriel and settled,” Kleinpeter said. “They didn’t have any government benefits and welfare. They had to get out and get it. We’ve been farming since then. We’ve been in the milk business officially since 1913. You talk about old companies. If you want to get technical, Kleinpeter goes back 233 and a half years.”

Jeff Kleinpeter, the current president of Kleinpeter Farms Dairy, credits his father and the Kleinpeter pioneer spirit for the family’s current success.

“Ben Kleinpeter taught us from day one to do things right the first time,” Jeff Kleinpeter said. “He is a wonderful mentor to us.”
